Labor Day Is Observed In Celebration At Chicago

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR IS SPEAKER

"Bread and Butter, Bacon and Beans" Catchword of Address to Crowds

OTHERS ON PROGRAM

Union Men, Some Employed and Others Jobless March Through Streets

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Labor, in a big and tucker frayed by adverse times, celebrated Labor day with more vigor than enthusiasm.

Gov. William H. (Alfalfa) Bill Murray of Oklahoma, here in his work clothes, to fit his battle cry of "bread and butter instead of beer" to the tune of a speech under the auspices of the American Federation of Labor at Soldier field, was the chief drawing card.

Down Michigan avenue moved a parade of union men, some employed and some ready to step out of line at the first offer of a job. They were en route past the towering lake shore skyline flanked with thousands of onlookers for Soldier field, to hear "Alfalfa Bill" of "oil holiday" fame peak his piece on how prosperity can be coaxed back again and to listen to addresses by other representatives of the labor movement.

On the program, besides Gov. Murray, were Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, and former Gov. Edwin P. Morrow of Kentucky. Their addresses rang with praises congratulating the federation on its 50th anniversary—the golden

TEXAS SOLONS TO MEET THIS WEEK

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Thousands of Texas farmers, seeking enforced reduction of cotton acreage, will make the state capital their headquarters this week while the legislature meets in special session to save the Old South from threatened financial ruin by regulating the crop.

The legislature called by Governor Ross Sterling, will convene tomorrow at high noon.

A gigantic farmers' meeting will be held Wednesday night, with the cotton growers gathered to ask cotton acreage reduction from the legislators. More than 20,000 are expected to attend.

Gov. Juey P. Long of Louisiana, whose state has declared a one year holiday on cotton planting, and Eugene Tailmadge, Georgia commissioner of agriculture, will be featured speakers. Gov. Sterling also will participate.

180,000,000 SUFFERING IN CHINA FLOODS

Number of Deaths Estimated to Be at Million, Survey Reveals

SHANGHAI, Sept. 7.—(UP)—China's acute distress from floods that scourged 17 provinces was revealed today in a survey that showed at least 180,000,000 persons are suffering.

The number of deaths was impossible to calculate although a Chinese news agency estimated at least 1,000,000 were drowned in the Yellow river basin floods.

The Yellow river has proven an even greater menace than the floods in the Yangtze river valley several weeks ago. Refugees in these sections need at least 1,000,000 tons of food to maintain them until spring, and the proposal to supply American wheat was regarded as only a temporary means of relief.

Constantly increasing political complications have made the situation worse. Despite pledges of Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the national government, that there will be no war, the Canton army is advancing in Hunan province. A dispute between Manchurians and Japanese over the execution of a Japanese army officer has assumed serious proportions.

THREE KILLED AS AIRPLANE CRASHES

SANTA CRUZ, Calif., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Failure of the motor in a sluggish seaplane was blamed today for an accident that carried a pilot and two young sisters to their death in Monterey bay here yesterday.

The plane, piloted by George H. Robertson, 22, of Berkeley, landed as he banked it for a landing and went into a nose-dive. Thousands of pleasure seekers on the beach saw it plunge into the water, killing Robertson and his passengers, Annette Keiser, 16, and Catherine Keiser, 11, of Sanger.

Several women, on the beach, faintly. One woman, standing on a pier, collapsed and fell into the water. She was rescued by lifeguards.

CONTINUES BATTLE AGAINST VET BONUS

WICHITA, Kan., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs, continued the administration's effort to prevent a cash bonus and further veterans appropriations by the next session of congress in a speech here today.

"I would urge that all veterans organizations make the most careful study of the ultimate cost and probable scope of relief already authorized, and of the ability of the country to maintain the resultant expenditures, before requesting congress to add to the benefits already being paid," Hines said in addressing the Kansas state convention of the American Legion.

KILLED IN CRASH

OTUMWA, Ia., Sept. 7.—(UP)—H. C. Wells, 30, Omaha, Neb., was killed when his airplane crashed 300 feet to the ground during a celebration yesterday in honor of President William Green of the American Federation of Labor. The plane barely missed a group of spectators.

Pinochle Hand Is Perfect; Holder Is Dead

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Alfred Warner, 55, trembled as he looked at his pinochle hand and saw that he was within one card of a "perfect hand."

With spades as trumps, he held two aces of spades, two kings, two queens, one jack and two tens. If he drew the jack of spades he would have the seldom seen hand worth 1500 points.

He drew the card, glanced at it and slumped in his chair. At the police emergency hospital he was pronounced dead of a heart attack.

Back at the pinochle table someone looked at the card Warner drew. It was the jack of spades.

SPEED TROPHY FOR BOATS TO GO TO BRITISH

Kaye Don Sets New Record When He Defeats U. S. Racer at Detroit

DETROIT YACHT CLUB, Detroit, Sept. 7.—(UP)—The Harmsworth trophy, emblem of world supremacy in speed boat racing, today seemed likely to pass from American hands back to England, its original home.

The victor in yesterday's heat, Kaye Don, the smiling, affable Englishman, seemed almost certain to bring his Miss England II across the line first in this afternoon's heat. The trophy goes to the winner of two heats.

Don and the gray haired Gar Wood, dean of American speed boat pilot and defender of the trophy, staged the greatest power boat race in history yesterday evening as they hurtled the Miss England and Miss America over the Detroit river. Both boats attained speeds heretofore unapproached in such a race.

Wood's other entry, Miss America VIII, driven by his brother, George, was never a serious threat to Don. It finished several hundred yards back of the Ninth. Don established new records in both lap and heat speeds.

The Miss England turned the five mile course at 39.07 miles per hour on the second lap, and averaged 39.913 for the 30 nautical miles. The previous lap record was 39.082, and the heat record was 37.330, both held by Wood. The Ninth also attained new speeds as Wood chased the flying English hydroplane about the course. His best

ARREST MINISTER AS SON'S SLAYER

ROCHELLE, Ga., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Rev. J. N. Williams, a Rochelle minister was in jail here today pending preliminary hearing on a charge of slaying his son, Radford Grady Williams, to collect $2500 insurance.

The body of the slain man, who was on furlough from the U. S. navy, was found near Augusta, Ga., a month ago.

Deputy Sheriff W. W. Cobb said the arrest of the minister was based on a mass of evidence allegedly involving the minister-father. Cobb said the body of the slain man, was found near his father's car and that gun wounds causing his death were from a gun of the same caliber as one borrowed by his father shortly before meeting his son.

PIONEER PUBLISHER CALLED BY DEATH

VISALIA, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Col. George W. Stewart, credited as the moving force in placing Sequoia park in the National Parks system, died yesterday in San Francisco after an operation, word received here said.

Col. Stewart was a pioneer newspaperman here, later becoming head of the U. S. land office. Last year his work in originating the move to make of the Sequoia grove a national park and his studies of Indian tribes of the district were recognized at a public function when a mountain in the park was named for him.

Col. Stewart's only living close relative, Mrs. Emily Jones, a daughter, resides in Reno, Nev.

Dole, Work Necessary, He Asserts

Says Proper Distribution of Available Jobs is Real Solution

OTTUMWA, Ia., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Unemployment has become so acute in America that it has come to be a question of supplying work or providing a dole, according to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Green was the principal speaker at a Labor day celebration here.

"American workers abhor the imposition of a dole," said Green in the speech which he prepared for delivery. "The antidote for the dole is work. Which shall it be?"

The labor head expressed the opinion that with proper distribution of such jobs as are available enough workmen could be given part-time employment to bring relief. He pleaded for the five day week and a shorter working day.

"Work must be provided," he said, "and industry can do this through an equitable distribution of all work available. Will industrial management meet the issue, divide work as equitably as possible, inaugurate the five day week and a shorter work day in order to achieve this purpose or refuse, do nothing and as a result become the strongest ally of those who are seeking to permanently impose the dole upon American economic, social and political life? Industrial ownership and management can and must answer this question."

Green said labor is interested in better prices for farm products because "we understand that we cannot enjoy prosperity for the few while other groups are suffering economic distress."

The true solution of economic difficulties, the speaker said, lies in establishment of "a balance between the productive capacity of industry and the purchasing and consuming power of the people."

HOOPER REPORTS ON FEDERAL PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—President Hoover, in a report made public today showing progress of the $700,000,000 federal building program, estimated that by January 1, 100,000 men will be employed directly or indirectly on government construction projects.

The report said that at present 39,000 men are at work on building projects.

Mr. Hoover said that since the last report on July 15, more buildings have been completed than during any whole year since 1927. In his July 15 statement, the president said a total of 57 projects had been completed since May, 1929, was 121.

The total cost of the 121 projects completed to Sept. 1 was $39,869,569.04.

SPEED PLANES SEEK TO MAKE RECORD MARK

Twelve of Speediest Ships in America to Compete for $15,000 Prize

CLEVELAND, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Twelve of the speediest sky-craft in America were rolled to the starting line at Cleveland airport today to await the takeoff in the second most important speed event in national aviation—the Thompson trophy race.

The finale of the 11th annual national air races was to be furnished with a burst of speed at 5:30 p. m., eastern standard time, when a cannon shot sends the dozen ships spinning away on the 100-mile race. Fifteen thousand dollars awaited the winners.

Trial flights indicated that speed in excess of 250 miles an hour would be displayed. In a special race Sunday, a competitor flashed five times around the 10-mile course with an average speed of 222 miles an hour, 21 miles greater than that attained by the late Charles ("Speed") Holman when he won the event last year.

12 Planes Qualify

The entrants, whose planes qualified at 175 miles per hour or better, were:

Major James H. Doolittle, new transcontinental speed king, who spanned the continent last Friday in the Bendix race in 11 hours and 15 minutes. Doolittle is flying the same little Laird biplane, but equipped with a more powerful motor, that he used in setting a new coast-to-coast record.

Lovell Bayles, Springfield, Mass., riding the tiny Gee Bee low winged sportster monoplane that developed a top speed of 286 miles an hour in a trial flight, unofficially setting a new record for American land planes.

Ray Moore, San Francisco, whose Keith mystery ship reputedly conceals power of 300-mile per hour propensities. This ship is equipped with retractable landing gear that folds in flight.

Louis Reichers, New York, in a Lockheed Altair.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS BEGINS SESSIONS

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—(UP)—The 12th assembly of the League of Nations convened here today for a month's session.

The first act of the assembly was to elect Nicolas Titulesco, delegate from Rumania, to the presidency.

"The entire world is suffering a terrible crisis," Titulesco said, as he took office. "The assembly of the league will fail in its duty if it does not demonstrate that the sacred fires of Geneva are able to help in overcoming the situation. That must be our principal task."

With both the league council and Briand's European economic union commission in session, the league expects to stage one of the busiest scenes of international activities it has yet held.

MOYLE AND ALLEN POSTPONE FLIGHT

SABISHIRO BEACH, Japan, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Strong winds postponed for the second time today the takeoff of Don Moyle and C. A. Allen, American aviators, on their proposed nonstop flight across the Pacific ocean.

With their monoplane City of Tacoma II stationed at the head of the long sandy runway, the fliers began last minute preparations this morning but at noon decided the wind was too strong.

Inclement weather caused the first postponement yesterday. It was understood the two air adventurers would not attempt to leave before 4 a. m. Tuesday, 2 p. m. E. S. T.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

SANTA MONICA, Sept. 7.—[To the Editor of The Register:] This trip of Wilkins will sure discourage a man from ever buying a second-hand submarine. I don't see why he don't try the thing under water. It sure won't float on top and unless he has made arrangements to have a whale tow him he ain't got much chance ever getting far.

I don't know anything about golf but I do know we met that won the championship yesterday. He is a great friend of Fred Stone and about the only time I ever followed a man was him and Fred. It's just about like following a man plowing all day. I had to follow him thirty-six holes to find out how to pronounce his name. We met.

SEVEN RESCUED FROM ISLAND OF GUADALUPE

Coast Guard Returns Party That Went in Search of Great Riches

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Guadalupe island, which rears its rocky head a mile out of the blue Pacific off the Mexican coast, today had deserted another expedition in search of riches.

Seven persons, one a woman and another a boy, stepped from the coast guard cutter Tamaroa in San Diego yesterday, rescued from the isle.

Guadalupe lies 235 miles southwest of San Diego. The seven went there last July expecting to become rich from taking wild goat skins.

Twenty Mexican laborers who accompanied the expedition deserted, rebelling at the loneliness and poor food. They left in the party's only boat and the American captain could not return to Guadalupe for want of funds.

Those who landed at San Diego on the Tamaroa were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Watson, Los Angeles; Theron Watson, 12, their son; Orville Lindsey, Bakersfield, Calif.; William Bradshaw, South Carolina; Gee Ying, Chinese cook, and J. A. Woodcock, San Diego.

"We killed plenty of goats," said Woodcock. "The Mexican government gave us permission to do that. The trouble was that it refused permission to remove the meat or hides."

Seven expeditions have gone to Guadalupe. Some went in an effort to commercialize the goats. Others went in search of pirate gold.

"Treasure?" Woodcock laughed. "No, we didn't see any gold. To tell the truth, the only treasure we looked for toward the end was food."

BANDIT STABS HIS VICTIM WITH KNIFE

VALLEJO, Calif., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Raymond Reisen, 20, was reported in a critical condition today from knife wounds received when he defended his girl companion against a bandit.

Reisen was returning from a dance with Madeline Wood, 17, when they were stopped by the bandit. Angered when Reisen could give him only $5, he threatened to take the girl.

The youth grappled with the marauder, who drew a knife and stabbed Reisen in the abdomen, and then fled.

WHITE FLAG IS HOISTED BY REBELS

Federal Troops Take Naval Base From Mutineers After Heavy Fighting

800 REPORTED DEAD

Cannons, Machine Guns, Rifles Used in Battle At Talcahuane Today

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Part of the Chilean mutineers, their morale broken by an attack without quarter on land and a heavy bombardment from the air, raised the white flag today. The government expected complete surrender momentarily of the group that had seized control of the battle fleet.

Federal troops captured the naval base at Talcahuane after heavy fighting in which several casualties were unofficially estimated at from 500 to 800. Government losses were light.

Army and navy airplanes raked the decks of Chile's modern battle fleet with machine gun fire and damaged several ships with bombs. Many sailors tried to swim to shore.

The rout of the mutineers appeared complete. Officers held prisoner aboard the battleships were allowed to come ashore.

Government forces got into action soon after an announcement that the administration would wage a "fight to the finish" against the mutineers. The first attack was against the Talcahuano base, the navy's chief source of supply. The engagement lasted two hours and resulted, an official government bulletin said, in the capture of "thousands of prisoners" and quantities of arms and ammunition.

800 Reported Dead

Casualties were not mentioned but unofficial estimates place them as high as 500 or perhaps 800. Federal troops were commanded by General Novoa, a veteran in the regular Chilean army and a loyal supporter of the present regime.

STATEMENT GIVEN OUT BY LABORITE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Unemployment and "denial of freedom through Volsteadism constitute the outstanding problems of American labor, the American Federation of Labor's anti-prohibition committee said today in a Labor Day statement.

The committee declared "Volsteadism" is a basic cause of unemployment and crime and urged "co-operation" to effect modification of the law.

"We have the strength," the statement said, "in co-operation with the great numbers friendly to our cause, to overthrow Volsteadism this winter."

MIDDLE WEST STILL SUFFERS WITH HEAT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 7.—(UP)—A glaring sun today continued to beat down on the southwest, sending temperatures well above the 100 degree mark. The heat wave, now of three days duration, is being caused by a low pressure area along the Canadian border, said A. J. Hanrick, government weather man here.

High temperatures recorded yesterday: Kansas City, 100; St. Louis, 103; Oklahoma City, 101; Kinfisher, Okla., 107; Coffeyville, Kan., 101. The heat wave also struck Nebraska and the Dakotas.

W.C.T.U. GROUP DEPLORES ACT OF VETERANS

An open letter to the American Legion from the Tustin W. C. T. U. was made public today, deploring that group's action in its recent convention at Long Beach, in which it asked for modification of the liquor laws.

The letter pointed out that it is possible that the citizenry and not the law is at fault in the enforcement problem and declared that "the united support of the 18th amendment by the American Legion would be of tremendous power in enforcing this law. We are very sorry you did not give this."

The letter follows:

"It is with deep regret that the members of the Tustin Women's Christian Temperance Union read the resolutions regarding the liquor question passed by the American Legion at the state convention at Long Beach, Calif.

"Do you think we cannot enforce the 18th amendment—a law which we ourselves passed by a tremendous majority? Does not the trouble lie somewhere else than with the law itself, possibly with the citizenry at large?"

"The united support of the 18th amendment by the American Legion would be of tremendous power in enforcing this law. We are very sorry you did not give this."

Bayles, Hall circled five 10-mile laps in a race yesterday, 223 miles an hour.

Harold S. Johnson, Chicago mail pilot, flying the same Lockheed plane that brought him secondary honors in the Bendix race.

J. J. Whitman, Oshkosh, Wis., flying a Whitman racer, reports from Wisconsin, reports his speed in the vicinity of 300 miles per hour.

Robert Clappett, San Francisco, flying another Keith mystery ship, "Red" Jackson of Endurance flight fame, flying a Laird solution ship as a substitute for Lee Schoenhar, Cleveland.

James Wedell, Patterson, La., flying a Williams-Wedell special, Capt. Ira Baker of the U. S. army, flying a Lockheed Altair.

Don O. Howard, Chicago, flying a plane of his own design.

Favorites to win were Doolittle and Bayles. These two aces were scheduled to take off this forenoon in a joint attempt to establish a speed record over a chartered three kilometer course.

The Pacific Coast entries, the Keith mystery ships, also were given strong backing.

The Thompson trophy, donated by Charles E. Thompson, Cleveland, was first offered as a major aeronautical prize last year. Holman, 146 winner, was killed early this summer at the Omaha speed races.

The race is ranked next to the Schneider cup races.

SCHOOL HEADS WILL HOLD FIRST MEET

With the annual summer vacation drawing to a close for students and teachers of the Santa Ana schools, the faculties of the high school and junior college will gather tomorrow for their first meeting of the fall term. The gathering will be in the music room of the high school at 2 p. m., according to D. K. Hammond, principal of the high school and president of the junior college. Dr. Percy Davis, superintendent of schools, will address the group.

Principals of all schools in the city, with supervisors, will meet Saturday at 9 a. m. in the Frances Willard Junior High school. At 10 a. m. all elementary school teachers and all other instructors except those in the high school and junior college will assemble at the same place.

COUNTY HEALTH DEPARTMENT PLANNING WARFARE AGAINST RATS IN DOWNTOWN DISTRICT

A survey of the rat situation in the business district in Santa Ana is now under way, it has been announced by Dr. K. H. Sutherland, county health officer. The Orange county health department was requested by the city council to investigate and remedy the condition if it was possible, after a group of business men had presented the council with a petition asking that action be taken on the matter.

lap was $9,267 miles an hour, and his average for the 30 miles was $7,027.

Experts had predicted Don would have trouble maneuvering his boat around the turns, but there was nothing in the race to bear out their predictions. The heavy white huller racer, holder of the world's record for speed on water, took the turns neatly, and planned excellently at all times.

Wood, however, said his ninth gave him trouble because of poor planning. The boat was jumping somewhat, he said, preventing him from utilizing her full speed. Taking the wake from Don's craft added to the Ninth's troubles.

A crowd estimated at half a million lined the river banks to see the heralded international contest.

Wood won the prized plaque in England in 1920. He is defending it for the sixth time. Don's victory yesterday was the first defeat Wood has suffered since he first won the trophy.

Son of the Greene family, slight cuts.

L. L. Hayes, Orange, cuts and bruises.

Miss Rose Baker, Los Angeles, severe cuts and bruises.

Ed Fitzgerald, Los Angeles, severe cuts and bruises.

Lune was killed almost instantly last night when his car turned over as he was turning into Tustin avenue from Collin road. Lune's jugular vein was severed when the car turned over. Officers who investigated the crash said that they were at a loss to explain how the man received his fatal injury as they could find no object or broken glass that might cause such a wound.

The body was taken to the Gilgilly Funeral home in Orange pending an inquest.

Miraculous Escape

Miss Rose Baker, 35, and Ed Fitzgerald, 42, both of Los Angeles, had a miraculous escape from death when their automobile was crowded from the road by a hit and run driver and plunged 80 feet from the road to Aliso beach, near Laguna Beach yesterday afternoon.

According to witnesses who obtained the number of the hit-and-run machine, the car driven by Fitzgerald was traveling south along the Coast highway when it was struck by the car of the hit-and-run driver. Fitzgerald's machine plunged off the cliff, turned over once and then slid on its side down the embankment, coming to a halt within 10 feet of a tent containing several persons.

Horrible pluckers rushed to the scene expecting to find both occupants of the car dead. They were unconscious when removed from the wrecked automobile and were taken to the Laguna hospital, where examination failed to reveal any broken bones. Both Miss Baker and Fitzgerald were severely cut and bruised.

Five passengers in the automobile driven by James J. Kelley of Los Angeles and Kelly were injured early yesterday morning, some of them severely, when the machine collided with another automobile driven by Cecil O. Goughan, of Long Beach. According to Goughan, he was driving north on the state highway at Sunset beach when the Kelley machine approached on the wrong side of the road. Swerving to the left Goughan attempted in vain to avoid a collision. Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Miss Nona Acton, Mr. and Mrs. Foster, passengers in the car driven by Kelley and Goughan were rushed to the St. Mary's hospital Long Beach and Kelley was taken to the Community hospital where he was given first aid before being released.

McCafferty, Spehar, Reamer and Lillian Keith, and Edith Creaghe were injured Saturday night when their automobile, driven by McCafferty, collided with another car driven by Carl Schumacher, of Orange. Mrs. Schumacher received slight injuries but was sent to her home after receiving first aid treatment at the Orange county hospital. The three sailors and two women are still at the hospital. The crash occurred at the intersection of Santa Ana avenue and Chapman avenue in Orange.

Greene, his wife and son, all of Fullerton were injured in a head on collision on South Los Angeles street, near the city limits of Anaheim late Saturday night, with a car driven by L. L. Hayes, North Glasell street, Orange. Hayes, after receiving emergency treatment for cuts and bruises was locked in the Anaheim jail on a drunk charge. Officers indicated that more serious charges will be filed against Hayes as a result of the accident.

"To combat the rat successfully man must become familiar with its habits of living and breeding and know its dietary preferences. Methods of combat must be studied and the proper application of the most efficient of these must be better understood. In the age old fight for survival, the rat has learned lessons of sagacity, patience and agility, which well fit it for a contest in which man must exercise his ingenuity to the utmost if he would win.

"Direct measures of attack have but a limited usefulness in the hands of the public. Trapping with snap or cage traps, the use of poison baits, the aggression of natural antagonists, such as dogs, cats, ferrets, weasels, etc., and fumigation with poisonous gases, may all be resorted to, but, with the exception of trapping, they cannot be recommended for use by the inexperienced householder. Rat suppressive measures, if universally prosecuted, will do more to make life hazardous for the pest than the application of destructive agents.

"The most effective suppressive measure is to separate the rat from its customary food supply. This procedure should be followed in most scrupulous detail in the home, the place of business and wherever foodstuffs are stored or handled."

Upon completion of the survey the health department expects to take active steps towards eliminating the rodents, it was reported. Dr. Sutherland called attention to an article on the subject in the bulletin issued weekly by the state health department. The article declared that public health authorities everywhere are recognizing the increasing health and economic menace of the rat.

As the principal agent in the spread of bubonic plague the rat is responsible for the almost worldwide prevalence of this disease, which during the twenty year period ended in 1923 killed over 11,000,000 people in India alone, it was pointed out.

"Notwithstanding the depredations of rats," the bulletin states, "annually costing the people of the United States approximately $200,000,000 for food consumed and a like amount or more for losses sustained through the wanton destruction of the animal causes, the general public needs to be informed of the dangers and the cost of feeding millions of these parasitic rodents.

"The public should be brought to realize that if the extraordinary prolific breeding of rats were not constantly controlled by disease, natural enemies and the cannibalistic tendencies of the animal itself, the world might be overrun and man himself forced to fight a losing battle for scraps of food.

"To combat the rat successfully man must become familiar with its habits of living and breeding and know its dietary preferences. Methods of combat must be studied and the proper application of the most efficient of these must be better understood. In the age old fight for survival, the rat has learned lessons of sagacity, patience and agility, which well fit it for a contest in which man must exercise his ingenuity to the utmost if he would win.

"Direct measures of attack have but a limited usefulness in the hands of the public. Trapping with snap or cage traps, the use of poison baits, the aggression of natural antagonists, such as dogs, cats, ferrets, weasels, etc., and fumigation with poisonous gases, may all be resorted to, but, with the exception of trapping, they cannot be recommended for use by the inexperienced householder. Rat suppressive measures, if universally prosecuted, will do more to make life hazardous for the pest than the application of destructive agents.

"The most effective suppressive measure is to separate the rat from its customary food supply. This procedure should be followed in most scrupulous detail in the home, the place of business and wherever foodstuffs are stored or handled."

STEAL TWO CARS IN GETTING AWAY

The unmasked bandits who held up the First National Bank of Brea Saturday morning and escaped with approximately $800 managed to escape the police net thrown out immediately following the robbery.

The Motor roadster which the bandits stole from the Shell Oil company camp was found in Pasadena, at 9 o'clock Saturday night, the robbers exchanging it for another machine in the Crown City.

YALE STUDENTS EARNINGS ARE OVER $780,000

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—(INS)—

Undergraduates at Yale continue to pile up money for working while they are in college. They earned a total of $781,967 in the year ending last June, according to a report by Professor Albert B. Crawford, director of the Yale bureau of appointments, and their earnings were $100,000 better than the year before.

They set a new Yale record, in fact. High spots in the earnings were the fact that one student took in $3000 in a college year, while another went better than $2000, six earned over $1500 each, 12 made more than $1000 apiece and no fewer than 74 had between $500 and $1000.

The business situation made itself felt on Yale students, according to Professor Crawford's report, for there was an unusually heavy demand for short-term loans in the second term of the Yale year. Many students applied for loans who never before had needed them. An anonymous grant of $5000 helped Yale in this emergency. The total financial aid extended to her students by Yale amounted to $537,197.

Suit pressing gave 108 Yale men the sum of $18,427, while 45 men engaged in laundry agent work took in a total of $2385. Dance orchestras flourished and 28 students engaged in such musical activity earned $9421. The old practice of waiting on tables gave 548 students their board, an item of expense that saved them $120,397. Then there were seven men who sold neckties and made $473 net.

Five passengers in the automobile driven by James J. Kelley of Los Angeles and Kelly were injured early yesterday morning, some of them severely, when the machine collided with another automobile driven by Cecil O. Goughan, of Long Beach. According to Goughan, he was driving north on the state highway at Sunset beach when the Kelley machine approached on the wrong side of the road. Swerving to the left Goughan attempted in vain to avoid a collision. Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Miss Nona Acton, Mr. and Mrs. Foster, passengers in the car driven by Kelley and Goughan were rushed to the St. Mary's hospital Long Beach and Kelley was taken to the Community hospital where he was given first aid before being released.

McCafferty, Spehar, Reamer and Lillian Keith, and Edith Creaghe were injured Saturday night when their automobile, driven by McCafferty, collided with another car driven by Carl Schumacher, of Orange. Mrs. Schumacher received slight injuries but was sent to her home after receiving first aid treatment at the Orange county hospital. The three sailors and two women are still at the hospital. The crash occurred at the intersection of Santa Ana avenue and Chapman avenue in Orange.

Greene, his wife and son, all of Fullerton were injured in a head on collision on South Los Angeles street, near the city limits of Anaheim late Saturday night, with a car driven by L. L. Hayes, North Glasell street, Orange. Hayes, after receiving emergency treatment for cuts and bruises was locked in the Anaheim jail on a drunk charge. Officers indicated that more serious charges will be filed against Hayes as a result of the accident.

REBELS HOIST WHITE FLAG IN REVOLUTION

rifles were used by both sides. Insurgent sailors were concentrated in the barracks and ignored an ultimatum from Gen. Novoa. The federal troops opened fire from half a dozen points simultaneously and after heavy bombardment a white flag was raised at the entrance of the arsenal.

Federals advanced but were met by heavy machine gun fire. They were forced to retreat momentarily but rallied and took the arsenal, capturing several rebel leaders.

The attack on the fleet was made after repeated threats to make use of the air force if the rebels refused to surrender. The air squadrons, concentrated from Iquique and other bases, advanced over the port and then headed out to sea to bomb their former comrades in arms.

The mutineers, apparently caught unprepared because earlier threats of bombing had not materialized, mounted anti-aircraft guns hastily on the decks and attempted to ward off the bombardment. Their efforts were of little avail.

Planes Rake Decks

The airplanes raked the decks of the men-of-war with machine gun fire and struck several of the craft with bombs. One submarine was put completely out of action and surrendered.

Bombs damaged the superstructure of several of the larger ships and sent submarines and destroyers scurrying for safety.

Two submarines which dived to escape the bombardment and then started northward picked up a government "call to colors" broadcast to all ships and went into port to be placed at the government's unconditional orders.

Sentiment against communists, who supported the rebels but were not identified officially with the mutiny increased throughout Chile. Government officials estimated that 20,000 civilians resorted for voluntary military service. They were given rifles and began drilling.

Carabiniers were on patrol in the streets here but the capital was quiet with confidence in the government gaining steadily.

DEATHS

A WORD OF COMFORT

No one else can protect you or emancipate you from cynicism; only you yourself can refuse to allow bitterness to dam up the currents from the depths, which are rising to comfort and to strengthen your soul.

It is not always on the days when you feel that you are making most progress, but on the days when you have to fight hardest to keep your faith and your courage, and when you feel almost worsted, you are developing power to triumph over doubts and fears and desolation. The darkest hour precedes the dawn. If you are holding fast to your ideals and hopes, you are just about to know the confidence and the peace you crave at the moment when the shadows seem darkest. Hold on!

APPEAL LOWER COURT RULING IN CIVIL SUIT

Dudley Chandler and Glen Behmer today had appealed to the superior court here from a judgment in the Huntington Beach justice court, which found for the defendants in the stockholders' liability suit brought by Chandler and Behmer against owners of stock in the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company.

The plaintiffs sued the stockholders to force payment of a note for $39,431.53, which their complaint said had been guaranteed by the Orange County Bond and Mortgage company. With interest, the amount asserted to be due and unpaid now is $37,032.42.

The note was issued on December 27, 1926, by Leo Callahan, Lowell A. Dewey, Helen E. Leo, Alta T. and Agatha Callahan and given to the plaintiffs as trustees of an express trust for the benefit of the creditors of the Callahans, the complaint said. When the principal was not paid and the mortgage company refused to pay it also, the plaintiffs brought suit against 29 stockholders in the mortgage company.

PUPILS NOW IN SCHOOL LONGER

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Sept. 7.—(UP)—The average American boy or girl of 1931 receives two more years of schooling than the average boy or girl of 1914.

Such is the announcement of William John Cooper, federal commissioner of vocational education and formerly California state superintendent of public instruction. The "average" pupil of today is one of a class of 30, while his father's 1910 class had 34 pupils. His chances of going to high school, which were but 1 to 10 in 1900 are now "50-50," and his chances of going to college are 1 in 6.

JUST ONE MAN'S OPINION

Our problem today needs a leader in close touch with nature. One who has learned the answer that to solve the seemingly complex is simplicity.

Humanity and naturalness dominated Franklin, Washington, Marshall, Lincoln, Cleveland, Roosevelt.

Our Rabot has now reached an age of maturity and no longer requires nor deserves federal or state encouragement, to its future development, instead, nationwide reforestation means, not only our present salvation but also security to our posterity.

Read what Chet Dyer of Jackson county, Ohio, and chief executive of the National Grange has done for his state along this line. The more one studies this reforestation program the more convinced they become it is the only safe and sane course for this country to follow. Our billions of almost idle dollars seeking conservative investment in federal bonds and the government backed by forests and their by-products, improved soil, increased rainfall, ready market for lumber and the resultant speeding up of business and social activities in all lines and we can sit back and vision our greatest years of prosperity and contentment still ahead of us.

HABIT FORMATION

It's like an iridescent dream in this intensely utilitarian age to cleanse mankind of selfish, mercenary greed. It can't be done, never has and never will.

It is a struggle from early youth to old age to hold the crumbling race and keep the flickering light from expiring. Witness the moving hosts—earth with her swarming millions presents a mingled scene of rising hopes, ambition, strife and death. Her inhabitants are dismayed by the approach and fear of death, the fell destroyer.

Time quickly measures the fleeting days, months and years of human existence, and generations follow generations. In quick succession rolls the tide of human woe.

If you desire to make a certain thing a habit, according to Professor James of Harvard, a habit is nothing but a path in the brain along which nerve energy always tends to flow each time the same circumstances arise. The first time you repeat the act the path becomes clearer and easier. The best and greatest men and women in the world have good, honest, truthful habits. Without habits we are nothing. We must commit ourselves irrevocably to good habits.

This is not another new religion. It is science. New things are being discovered every day. Some are amazing. I have resolved to be slow about condemning new ideas, there is so much we don't understand. It has also been discovered that our minds were divided into two parts—the conscious which we think and reason and deal with, and the deeper lying or subconscious part which controls and directs all our involuntary activities. It is amazing how many men and women are just waiting for something to turn up. Nothing good will ever turn up unless we turn them up. If this hits you, take a new lead. Good habits are our most precious achievement.

He is shown here, right, marrying Cleo Wurst and Edgar Smith, center, his first customers. The wheat is seen before Justice Montgomery who says he will continue to accept it as legal tender regardless of whether it is selling for 30 cents a bushel in Kansas.

SNAKE WITH LEGS CLIMBS TREE; STARTLES WORKER

Manuel Alarcon doesn't know whether to feel relieved or angry. Anyway, he knows he got a great, big scare.

It seems that Manuel and O. J. Day, Westminister, were grubbing some stumps near Irvine park Friday. A sudden snake shot its head out of a knot hole and hissed right in Manuel's face. The workman felt a great urge to retreat, and did so, jumping several feet in nothing flat. For revenge, he lighted a fire under the stump and smoked the snake out. A sharp spade was applied and the snake hissed no more.

Examination disclosed that the snake had two short appendages resembling legs attached to the underpart of its body about six inches from its tail. This is said to be a very rare occurrence. Day exhibited the snake's body at The Register office in substantiation of his claim that it had leaped. He said it was believed to be a red racer.

OPERATING PLAN IS IMPROVED BY BANK

Appointments of the executive vice presidents, who will direct operations of Bank of America branches in the seven "self governing" districts of the state, under the recently announced plan, were made public here yesterday by President A. J. Mount.

President Mount, in his official statement emphasized the fact that the new set-up makes branches throughout the state virtually autonomous, giving to branch managers, familiar with local conditions, a wider discretion in dealing with the special needs of their respective communities.

The executive vice presidents, Dr. Mount said, have been carefully chosen on the basis of their general banking experience and their familiarity with affairs of the districts which they will administer.

Orange county is included in the southeast district of which Howard Whipple, executive vice president, will be in charge. Other counties in the district are Santa Barbara, Ventura, and Los Angeles exclusive of the city of Los Angeles.

To that end a group of especially trained teachers has been organized into a counselling staff, the business of which it is to help each pupil select the curriculum best suited to his interests and abilities and to solve any problems or difficulties that may arise during the school year. To carry on this work, Hammond said, it will be necessary to keep in close touch with the homes, and requested co-operation of parents in this respect.

SOCIETY

Ebell Year Books Are In Readiness for Distribution

Bound in cheerful orange-hued covers that suggest our own county, the year books of Ebell society of Santa Ana Valley are now in readiness for distribution among the members at the opening of the club year in the immediate future. Incorporated in the attractive booklets are many features of interest to clubwomen in general as illustrating the growth of Ebell society and the activities of its members.

A brief history of the club's origin and its formation in the home of Mrs. J. R. Medlock in 1894, is given by Mrs. W. S. Bartlett, first president and honorary life member. Mrs. Medlock is an active life member.

Officers and directors for the new year are Mrs. Bartlett, honorary president; Mrs. Paul Bailey, president; Mrs. F. C. Rowland, Mrs. F. W. Slabaugh, Mrs. George Kenneth Scovel and Mrs. J. E. Paul, first, second, third and fourth vice-presidents; Miss Norma Wingood, recording secretary; Mrs. Clyde Jenken, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. H. Haddon, treasurer; Mrs. M. M. Holmes, curtor; Mrs. Wyckoff Hoxie, Mrs. Hugh Plumb, Mrs. Earl Morrow, Mrs. B. H. Sharpless, Mrs. F. W. Wiseman and Mrs. Ralph A. Mosher, directors.

Following this list is that of the past presidents, the various committees in full. It is significant that of the eighteen presidents who have served one or more terms in the interval since the organization was launched, but one has been claimed by death, Mrs. J. W. Bishop.

Among reports given space in the publication, none gives a better idea of club accomplishments than that of the retiring president, Mrs. R. G. Tutill, who not only reviewed the program features of the year but told of the activities of the various sections. Mrs. Holmes, in her curator's report, went into additional detail on the latter, and other reports incorporated in the booklet, include that of the treasurer, Mrs. Haddon; of the Day Nursery by the chairman, Mrs. W. W. Kays, and the club's financial standing together with the year's disbursements.

Examination of the book discloses that there are 48 life members; three honorary life members; 440 general members; seven associate, and eight courtesy members.

METHODISTS OF LA HABRA HEAR S. A. MINISTER

LA HABRA, Sept. 7.—Dr. George A. Warner, of Santa Ana, pastor of the Methodist church, was the speaker at the first Fellowship supper of the La Habra Methodist church Friday night.

Dr. Warner stated that it was easier to criticize than to construct and that people must reverse things and start constructive thoughts.

"We have done our best in many of the material things of the earth and now we must spend more time developing spiritual things," he said.

"What a revolution in the United States if this country alone realized that life was the most important in the world. We must get the right relationships with God and man and the church of Jesus Christ is the only institution in the world majoring in that work."

One hundred and thirty-five members and friends of the church were seated at the 6:30 o'clock pot luck dinner preceding the program.

The pastor, the Rev. H. O. Simmons, explained that the purpose of the dinner was one of fellowship and announced that September was the rally month and urged all to back the program for the month.

October will be loyalty month. Sunday, September 6, will be known as the day of destiny in the church and will open the financial program of the church.

He stated that all estimates sent out for the year's budget have been returned with the full amount of the budget or more set aside for that month, promising an encouraging financial year for the church.

Cowboy songs were given by a trio of boys, Melvin Morris, with his guitar, and Leland and Leslie Baker.

McRae Potter, Hollywood artist, was married early Sunday morning to Miss Edna F. Kersten, also of Hollywood.

The couple was attended by Henri de Kruif, one of the most distinguished of the Southern California artists, and his wife, Muriel Earl, noted for her bathos. Hallem Cooley, movie star, was among the witnesses.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. T. Patchell, D. D., of Laguna Beach, pastor emeritus of the Congregational church at Torington, Conn., and chaplain emeritus of the Scottish Rite consistory at Bay City, Mich.

The wedding was planned originally for Sunday, August 30, but the day before Mr. Potter discovered that the marriage license issued to the couple in Los Angeles county could not be used for a ceremony in Orange county.

LAGUNA GROUPS, NAVY PLAN ROSE TOURNAMENT FLOAT

LAGUNA BEACH, Sept. 7.—Suggestion has been made to the American Legion post, the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations of Laguna Beach, by the Pasadena Tournament of Roses committee, that this city join with the United States Navy in the building of a float for the famous parade held on New Year's day. The theme of the parade is international in keeping with the spirit of the Tenth Olympiad to be held next year in Los Angeles. It is proposed that this city and the navy enter a float to represent a submarine, which would fly the flags of all nations. A machine gun, mounted on the deck of the submarine and using blanks, would give frequent demonstrations. A guard of honor, composed of marines, would march on each side of the float and the marine band would precede it. Sailors would man the submarine. The suggestion came in a letter to the organizations and permission was asked for the tournament committee to approach the navy on the question of co-operation. Favorable action has been taken by several organizations and the city council will be asked to help defray the expense out of the advertising fund. It is understood that if the plan is carried out, the float will be designed by navy experts.

Three years ago a Laguna Beach float won a prize in the Pasadena parade.

2 NEW GIRLS' CLUBS FORMED IN PLACENTIA

PLACENTIA, Sept. 7.—Two new girls' clubs have been organized at Calvary church by the club leader, Miss Edith McNutt. One is for first year high school girls and they are to meet each Wednesday evening, joining with the older girls of the Eleri club for a potluck supper and meeting afterward with Miss McNutt as leader, while Miss Irene Hunter will lead the Eleri group.

The decision to form this new group was reached when girls of the Euodia club for seventh and eighth graders met at the home of Katherine Watson for a potluck dinner, followed by a business session and games. Present at the meeting were Katherine Watson, Meryl Miller, Mildred Sutton and Elva Moore, who will form the nucleus of the new club; Lois Richer, Frances Bowen, LaVonne Kester, Dorothy Tadlock, Flora Smith and Miss McNutt.

The second new club is for first and second grade girls and will meet each Friday afternoon. The first meeting was held Friday. Games were played and refreshments served. Those present included Jewell Smith, Maybelle Smith, Emily Jane Beard, Betty Reid, Trilzie Lemons, Eileen Sutton, Laura Jean Long, Mary Katherine Rigan, Elizabeth Pickenpaugh, Lorraine Ziackett, Josephine Brockman and Elaine Solesbee.

The Girls' Magnify met and held a party at the church recently, with games and refreshments. Besides being the first meeting of the club season, it was in the nature of a farewell for Lois May Harris, who is leaving with her parents to live at Encinitas.

Those present included Bobbie Jerome, Helen Hodges, Joyce Macintosh, Agnes Day, Mary Ann Rymer, Dorothy Rodick, Betty Sweet, Betty White, Vena Copeland, Dorothy Beck, Glenda Pepper, Margaret Quigley, Lois May Harris, all members of the club, and two guests.

The Gleaners' club, for third and fourth grade girls, held a party at the church last week. Games being played and refreshments served, while the leader read a missionary story, after plans for the fall work were discussed. Those present were Betty Rodick, Wanda Walls, Betty Blodose, Esther Copeland, Margaret Wilsey and Shirley Schenck.

LABOR DAY IS DISCUSSED BY ORANGE PASTOR

ORANGE, Sept. 7.—"Jesus Said It Would Be Luckier for Some to Be Dead Than Alive," was the subject of the Sunday morning sermon by the Rev. Franklin H. Minck at the Christian church, "My Salvation and My Glory," by Wilson, was the anthem by the choir. Elden Farrar, singing evangelist with John Brown, gave a solo.

The Rev. Mr. Minck said in part: "It would be luckier for some to be dead than alive. Some people love to hang the mill stones around the neck of others. They are treading on dangerous ground. God is the righteous judge. Whenever we begin to judge others, we set up a barrier between them and ourselves. We should not alienate people by judging them. God is the judge."

"Tomorrow is Labor day. Let us look at the labor situation today. Look at the child labor in our factories today. Many factories are employing children. God's people as a group must take a stand for just treatment. Since 1855 there have been 20 depressions like we are experiencing today. There are 6,000,000 unemployed. How are we solving the problem? Shorter hours seems the only solution at present. There are 16,000,000 people in homes not fit to live in in America. As a church we have a task. The church of Jesus Christ has an overwhelming task."

225 STUDENTS EXPECTED FOR CHURCH SCHOOL

ORANGE, Sept. 7.—With the opening of the St. John's Parochial school tomorrow an enrollment of about 225 students is expected. This coming school year is expected to break all past records in attendance.

Owing to the increased number of students in the school, Eugene Wunderlich, who comes to Orange from Detroit, Mich., will begin work in the school tomorrow. He arrived in Orange Friday and was met by a delegation of officials from the school. Those who extended the welcome were Principal William Batterman, Associate Pastor A. E. Mueller, Carl Schumaker, John Eggers and William Fitch.

Wunderlich is a graduate of the River Forest "St. John's" college, where he graduated in 1919, and has been teaching for the past 12 years. He taught four years in Fort Smith, Ark., and spent eight years in the Detroit Lutheran grammar school. He is an accomplished organist and for several years was assistant musical director of the Detroit Lutheran Bach chorus. He is also a singer of considerable note.

Besides Principal Batterman and Wunderlich the faculty this year will be composed of Mrs. E. T. Gorath, J. J. Troester and Paul Hedder. Helen Behrens, whose place Wunderlich is filling, has accepted a teaching position in Santa Monica.

MISS DUNCAN BECOMES BRIDE OF W. W. WACKER

ORANGE, Sept. 7.—Culminating a romance that began during their junior year in the Orange Union High school, Miss Marie T. Duncan, youngest daughter of Mrs. V. E. Duncan, of 451 North Orange street, and Walter W. Wacker, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Wacker of 206 West Almond were married Sunday afternoon by the Rev. A. C. Bode in the assembly room of St. John's Lutheran church.

The dainty brunette loveliness of the bride was enhanced by all white attire. The bridal gown was of white satin over satin, made in tight bodice effect, full lower skirt, which swept the floor, and was designed with long tight sleeves, and a moderate shaped neck scalloped edges at neck, and skirt bottom, embroidered with seed pearls. The gown was designed and made by a friend of the bride, Mrs. N. Goodall, of Los Angeles. A long veil with cap effect and wreath of real orange blossoms and tiny sprays of lily of the valley completed the dainty array.

The bride carried a shower bouquet of roses and sweet peas mingled with greenery. The maid of honor was Miss Alice Phillips, daughter of Mrs. Orlena Phillips, of 286 North Orange street, and a cousin of the bride, who led in the wedding march and wore a dress of pale green satin trimmed in touches of pink. The gown was ample length with tight bodice. She carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas and ferns. Two dainty little flower girls preceded the bride, scattering rose petals before her from dainty blue tulip trimmed baskets. Little Darline Wacker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wacker, of Pender, Neb., and a niece of the groom, and tiny Ruth Mansur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mansur, of North Pine street, Orange, were gownned in organdie, one in yellow and the other in pink.

Ernest Unzelman and Richard Intorf, both business associates of the groom acted as ushers and seated the large assembly preceding the ceremony.

William Batterman, church organist, began the musical part of the program at 3:45 o'clock with "Evening Song." The second number was "Evening Star," by Wagner, followed by "Because," sung by Miss Sally Coe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Coe, of North Flower street, a schoolmate of the bride. Lohengrin's Wedding March followed, and immediately following the bridal vows, Miss Coe sang, "Sweet Mystery of Life," by Victor Herbert.

The wedding party left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's recessional, with the bride halting at the flower decked pew of her mother and passing into her hands the bridal bouquet. Congratulations were offered to the newlyweds in the receiving line at the open door of the church edifice.

The reception immediately following the ceremony was held on the spacious lawn of the home of the bride's sister, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Mack, at 523 North Harwood street. Mrs. V. E. Duncan, mother of the bride, was assisted in the receiving line by Mr. and Mrs. Mack. Mrs. Duncan was attired in black chiffon gown trimmed in flesh-colored lace, and Mrs. D. H. Wacker, mother of the groom, was gownned in blue flat crepe with trimmings of egg shell tint, Orchid and yellow asters predominated in the table decorations and a dainty repast was served.

Covers were laid for the Rev. and Mrs. A. C. Bode, Mr. and Mrs. William Batterman, Miss Sally

TREASON

Al Lang, St. Petersburg, Fla., sportsman, dropped us a line the other day in praise of Shortstop Frank Crosetti, the young infielder from the Pacific Coast League who will report to the Yankees next spring. Such disloyalty!

SHANO SUCCEEDS

Manager John (Shano) Collins hasn't won any pennants with those Red Sox yet, but he has made plenty of trouble for the other clubs. He has actually had the Red Sox trying to win ball games. He has "smartened" them up. He has made several clowns on the team out of the monkeyshines. And next year he will do just a little bit more. Shano Collins is a good manager.

ST. LOUIS JINX?

The Mack's this year have had trouble several times in St. Louis. Coffman, of the Browns, broke Groves' winning streak there. Last year, in the world series, the A's were able to win only one out of three games in St. Louis. The series opens this fall in St. Louis.

TUNNEY?

The man who probably could come closer to success than any of his contemporaries in trying a comeback is a fellow who probably never will. Meaning Gene Tunney. Gene is big and strong and a boxer.

Correct was my, what is Tunney's age, and had been out of the ring more than two years when he returned to face Jeff. Eventually Jeff won him down, but for 23 rounds, Jim made Jeff look like a novice. What would Tunney do against the mugs of today?

THE OLD URGE

Ty Cobb, golfing every day at his California home, breaks into print to deny that he had demanded $50,000 to manage a certain major league club. He says that in his present "happy frame of mind" he doubts if he would manage a major league club at any price. But, "even if I should care to manage a major league club I would never think of asking $50,000 a year."

That sounds to me as if a gentleman named Ty Cobb would like to manage a major league ball club.

ABOUT POREDA

A great deal of talk is being heard about Charles Retzlaff, Steve Hamas and Ernie Schaff. But the managers of none of these young men is burning up any wires trying to get a match with Stan Poreda, the Jigger from Jersey.

CAL. AMATEUR UNDER WAY AT PEBBLE BEACH

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif., Sept. 7.—(UP)—Britishers might easily have mistaken this sea shore links for those they have played in the old country, when a fine field prepared to tee off this Labor day in quest of the California amateur golf championship.

It was said to be the first time in the United States that a tournament was played under rules governing the British amateur. There will be no qualifying round. Eighty-eight of the field of 172 played one 18-hole match today, the remaining 84 drawing byes.

Francis I. Brown, Honolulu, defending champion, was one of the links men to draw byes. He, along with Rudie Wilhelm and Eddie Hogan, Portland; Captain A. Bullock, Webster, Jack Neville, five times champion, and many others were among the lucky ones, as Jackie Coogan drew their names from a hat Sunday.

The field is divided into four brackets. No players were seeded. Those who draw byes will play one 18-hole match Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday the survivors will play two 18-hole matches. The semi-finals Friday will be over 36 holes and Saturday the finals will also be 36 holes.

As Bobbie Jones has so frequently said, "Anything can happen in 18-hole matches." The recent national amateur at Chicago bore that out. Hence, picking a winner in this year's California amateur is the business of one acquainted with the black arts.

Pebble Beach is so severe a test that a golfer breaking 80 considers he has had a good round. Young Frank Stevens of Beverly Hills turned in a fine par 73 in practice and Bull Jelliffe of Culver City had a 74. Incidentally, Stevens is playing splendidly and may upset the defending champion—Brown—in section four Tuesday.

Arthur Pinley, San Francisco, and Jim McGregor, San Diego, were to be first off the tee at 9 o'clock today and were followed shortly afterward by Howard Hughes, Hollywood movie producer, who played Robert Edgren, Jr., Monterey. As Hughes toured the fairways, he could view his palatial yacht at anchor and he might even reach it with a long hook off the 13th tee.

PROSPECTS FOR SEASON BRIGHT AS STARS BACK

Getting the jump on some of their Southern California junior college playmates, Coach Bill Cook's Santa Ana Dons hold their initial football practice on Poly field tomorrow afternoon. Suits will be issued at 3 p. m.

Bright but not sensational, Santa Ana's prospects this year are rated on a par with those of other cities. Coach Oak Smith of Long Beach junior college opens practice next Monday in an uncertain state of mind in regard to material. Riddled by sickness, injury and ineptitude, the Long Beach squad was easily taken into camp last year by Santa Ana, and everything is in the Dons' favor again this season.

Fullerton promises to place a representative team on the grid-iron again, in doing Los Angeles junior college. With practice well under way in the big city, Coach Glenn Ackerman, although none too optimistic, expects his Cubs to be up in the running during the 1931 pennant chase. Heading the list of some 85 prospects at the Los Angeles institution are: Bill Dalton, Poly high backfield ace; Joe Banks and Joe Everett, Jefferson linemen; Clyde Carlton, Fairfax halfback; Dick Jarrett, Hollywood fullback, and Tor-kum Stepanian, Roosevelt tackle. Eight Cub lettermen will return, the most promising one being Ed Sowers, captain and star tackle.

Tartars Look Good
With the athletic security of Compton junior college secured, following the reverse ruling made by the Los Angeles board of education to prohibit all high school graduates within the city limits of Los Angeles from enrolling at any other junior college but Los Angeles, teams of the western division have placed Coach Deane Pine's Tartars at the head of the list of favorites.

It was chiefly through the attendance of several star athletes from Los Angeles, San Pedro and surrounding communities last year that the Compton institution walked away with conference football and track championships without a single defeat in either sport. Santa Ana was the only team not to be defeated in football by the Tartars, the game ending in a scoreless tie. Two hundred and seventy-four students living in the Los Angeles district already have signified their intentions to enroll at Compton junior college, according to admission reports.

Bartholomew Back
Wayne Bartholomew, valuable line-man of last year, has changed his mind about going to the University of New Mexico and will enroll at Santa Ana junior college for another year. Bartholomew plans to turn his attention to a guard position this season, the husky Don having filled in at tackle in 1930.

Last year's situation, that of having to mold a backfield combination out of a promising array of line-men, does not exist at the Don institution this season. Coach Cook's backfield prospects are as bright as his line-men, and that is saying something. On the line he will have an experienced group of players, including Lettermen Toby Groenow and Solon Beall, ends; Lettermen Mike Santa Cruz and Harry Clayton, all conference tackles; Korman, Brock McCoy, Garth Olson, Tom Beasley and Bartholomew, guards; and Paul Bruce and Miner Whitford, centers.

Seacord at Quarter
Emmett Seacord looms as the logical quarterback candidate to replace Wayne Garlock, last year's star. Halling from Tustin, Seacord played at punk here during the 1930 season and per- taining exceptionally well. Cook will learn this week whether or not he will receive the services of Kishi Shigewaka, plunging Japanese fullback. Shigewaka came here from Anaheim last year and made a grid name for himself. During the peak of his performance, however, he received collarbone injuries which shelved him for several weeks.

Santa Ana journeys to Ontario September 19 to clash with Chaffee junior college in the first practice game of the season. This will be followed by the Santa Ana-U. S. C. Frosh game, to be played as a preliminary to the U. S. C.-St. Mary's opener in the collapse September 26. The conference season will get under way October 10, with Santa Ana playing at Long Beach.

Dempsey To Box Five In Reno Today

RENO, Nev., Sept. 7.—Jack Dempsey will take on five heavyweights at the race track arena tomorrow and hopes to be able to dispose of each in a round or less.

Since the withdrawal of Leo Janski, the promoters searched the heavyweight ranks for suitable opponents for the former champion and today announced they intended to have five at the ringside.

Hans Birke of Oakland, Tom Sawyer of Delta, Colo., Sailor Jimmy Finkler of Vallejo, Sam Baker of Douglas, Ariz., and Eddie Burns, of Davenport, Iowa, will attempt to give Dempsey a busy afternoon.

STARS-COLTON BATTLE AGAIN HERE TUESDAY

With a good week-end's rest tucked under their belts and something to fight for again—this time the big championship—Santa Ana's "come back" All Stars are expected to snap out of it when they meet Colton in the second contest of the series here tomorrow night.

Santa Ana fans who drove to Colton for the first game Friday night, saw the Stars led down about 60 per cent, and play with a nonchalance that would have been too bad in the Anaheim series, but said fans merely laughed, realizing the strain of the Anaheim series had left its mark. They expect more of the old fire and ginniger tomorrow night.

Joe Cornelius who pitched the entire Anaheim series will be back on the rubber for Santa Ana, and given him during the past few days having put Santa Ana's one back on his feet, according to the beliefs of Manager George Laake, whose job today and tomorrow is to instill the old time pep into the team.

Tickets for the game tomorrow night will go on sale at 7 a. m. tomorrow at Vic Walker's sporting goods store and the Colton crowd, which numbered about 2,000, is expected to be doubled here.

Johnny Rice to try out with pirates

Johnny Rice, hard hitting fielder for Anaheim in the National Night League during the past season and always a menace to Santa Ana pitchers, will get a tryout with the Pittsburgh Pirates, it was learned here today.

Rice will join the Pirates training camp at Raso Robles next spring.

A left handed hitter, he was the leading Anaheim batsman. He is 18 years old.

RETURN TO COACHING

University of Virginia's new head football coach, Fred Dawson, is this fall returning to the game after illness forced him to retire. He formerly coached Nebraska, where two of his teams defeated Notre Dame.

KID BERG TO MAKE SECOND TRY AT CANZONERI'S TITLE IN NEW YORK THURSDAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—For the second time in five months, Tony Canzoneri, sturdy New York Italian, will put his lightweight championship in jeopardy this week and once more the challenger's corner will be occupied by the "White Chapel windmill" Jack ("Kid") Berg of London.

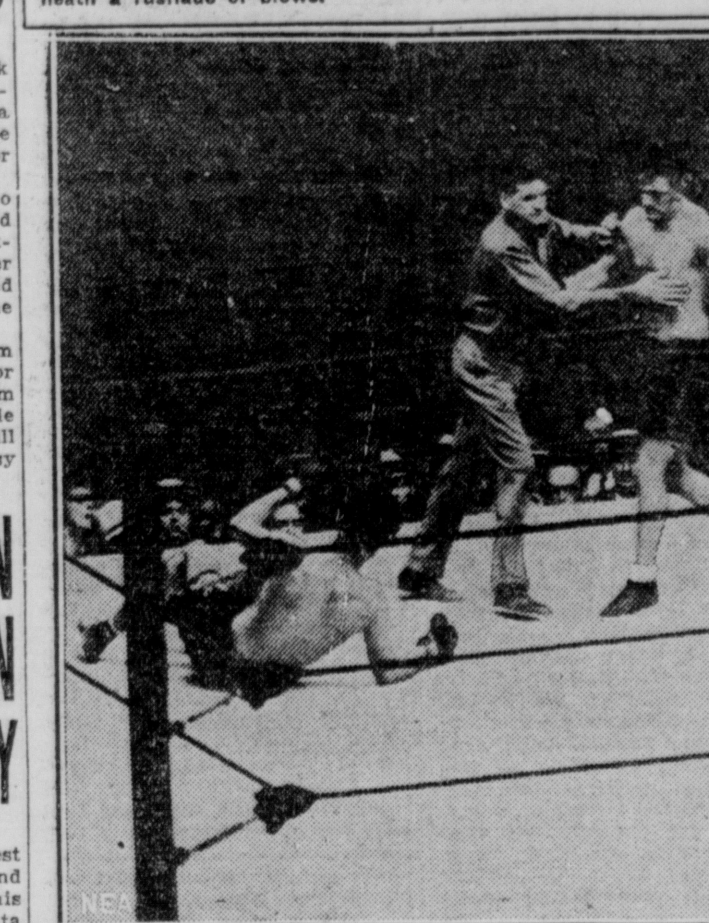

Berg's second effort to relieve Canzoneri of his crown will be made at the Polo Grounds Thursday night over the championship distance of 15 rounds.

Canzoneri, one-time holder of the featherweight title, captured the lightweight throne by knocking out Al Singer in a single round here last November.

In April he knocked out the challenger, Berg, in three rounds at Chicago. That victory not only enabled Canzoneri to retain the 136-pound title, but gave him Berg's junior welterweight championship as well. He still holds both crowns. The eight-round semifinal will pit

HE TOOK IT SITTING DOWN

It was in this semi-sitting position that Victorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, took the ten-second count in the seventh round of his bout with Ernie Schaff, Elizabeth, N. PREDICTS DOEG WILL RETIRE IF HE DROPS TITLE

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(UP)—It is our guess that if Johnny Doeg does not retain his national tennis singles championship at Forest Hills this week (and you will look all day and all night without finding anyone who thinks he will) he will call it quits and become an advertising man.

Our guess can hardly be classified as daring inasmuch as it is no secret that Doeg, had he had the last word in the matter, would have started his retirement immediately after winning the championship last year. At that time, according to his friends, the champion expressed a desire to settle down to his work and play tennis only when it would not interfere with his business.

This wish was not realized. Family pride kept him in there this summer and he has been knocking about from one tournament to another. He didn't like this. You could tell he didn't by the way he played, half heartedly and without the fire that had marked his play. He was whipped in five of the six tournaments he entered. We do not mean to say that he would have won had his heart been in the game. Vines and Lott and several others we can name are better players than Doeg. But we do maintain that had he entered the summer tournaments of his own volition, he would have made a better showing.

Now Johnny is in the midst of the open tournament he wants to win. And that desire was noticeable in his first round with Keith Verner of Los Angeles.

Several of the better experts are of the opinion that Doeg's drive for his second title will end today in his match with Eddie Jacobs to Baltimore.

Doeg Meets Jacobs

Johnny Doeg, defending champion may take a licking at the hands of Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore. Jacobs has twice overcome Doeg in previous struggles.

Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Calif., seeded No. 1, Sidney B. Wood, of New York, George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn of Philadelphia, Jacques Brugnon and Christian Boususs of France, Fred Perry and G. P. Hughes of Great Britain, are other seeded stars who will perform today.

Vines, who is favored to win the title, will oppose Dr. Herbert Fischer of Cynwyd, Pa. Dr. Fischer should be back to his patients tonight.

Brugnon, not the spry young men he used to be, is likely to have a very difficult time, beating back Bryant Grant, the tireless big ten player from Atlanta. It would not be at all surprising if Grant, the most indefatigable court coverer in tennis, ran Brugnon weary and came through with a victory.

Loughran battles an old foe in Jack Gross, from Salem, N. J., at the Phillies ball park Wednesday. Schaff meets Roberto Roberti of Italy at the Boston arena Thursday night.

CUB SWAT KING HANDED LAYOFF WITHOUT PAY

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Sept. 7. — (UP) — Hack Wilson, who hit 56 home runs last year and was able to command a salary of $33,000 for the 1931 season, was an outcast today from the Chicago Cubs.

Charged with "infractions of the training rules," Wilson was suspended yesterday by President William Veeck for the balance of the season. The suspension is without pay and will cost Wilson approximately $3600. Previous fines have cost Wilson about $1800 this season.

Pat Malone, Cubs' star right hand pitcher, also was fined heavily for "disorderly conduct and roistering," but not suspended.

Wilson's future in major league baseball remains uncertain. It has been reliably reported that the Cubs recently offered the pudgy outfielder to the Milwaukee American association club for First Baseman Art Shires and had the proposition turned down.

Whatever happens to Wilson, who last year broke all major league records by driving in 130 runs, more than any player in history, it is certain that he will not play with the Cubs. A few days ago William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Cubs, flatly stated that Wilson would not wear a Chicago uniform next season. Wrigley blamed Wilson's collapse this season partially to his failure to observe the training rules.

"You can't stay up all night and play baseball in the day time," Wrigley said in commenting on Wilson's case.

Wilson has played four full seasons with the Cubs, and was one of the most popular players on the team last year under Manager Joe McCarthy. In 1930, Wilson batted .356, hit 56 home runs for a new National league record and set the present major league record for runs batted in.

Under Roger Hornsby's regime, Wilson has been one of the most colossal flops in recent baseball history. His batting average dwindled below .300 and his fielding suffered as a result of his batting slumps. Hornsby benched Wilson several times in an effort to shake his slump but without result. When he was suspended Wilson's batting average was only .261 and he had hit only 18 home runs and driven in only 66 runs.

The Cubs have opened negotiations for Babe Herman, Brooklyn outfielder, and Chuck Klein, Phillies' outfielder, and Wilson might figure in a deal for one of these players. Recently the Phillies turned down an offer of three players and more than $100,000 in cash for Keon but the Cubs have not abandoned hopes of getting the hard hitting Philadelphia player.

LONDOS, McMILLEN MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(UP)—Jim Londos of Greece, claimant of the heavyweight wrestling title, and Jim McMullen, former U. of Illinois football player, will stage their third wrestling bout at soldier field tonight. Londos expects to weigh 265 and McMullen 220. The match will be two out of three falls to a finish. Londos won both previous matches in one fall.

Wild Animals Wanted

V. Missing Links in Australia

Low, brutish, ugly . . . a typical Australian bushman, painted with weird stripes and holding two boomerangs in his hands.

"The kangaroo seized the dog and deliberately held it under water until it had drowned."

By MARY CARMICHAEL

WE had established ourselves in a patch of thick underbrush, not far from the village of Namoy, Australia, nearly 10,000 miles from the noble American Statue of Liberty.

Through many long hours of the night, we intended to keep rendezvous in the bush, to get the lay of the land, to spy, in their native haunts, on as many rare animals as we might. Taking our places, we hoped they would "do their stuff"—these animals.

Above, the sky was bright with stars. The woods below were strangely still. And Brothers Tom, Jack, Bob and Bill, and Sister Mary, listened eagerly. Then, after nearly an hour, suddenly all "froze" together. For something fierce and ugly stirred in a clump of bushes across the rut that was a road.

Was it an animal—some strange species we had never met before? We could not tell, at first. But, straining, we waited, while I, in my nervousness, gripped fiercely at Tom's sleeve. He was nearest me, my big brother, and my solid protection.

Then came another stir—and we knew. Opposite us, emerging for a moment, then deeply delving again into the rough brambles, was an Australian bushman, probably the lowest, most brutish, ugliest, human on the face of the earth. He—and his still uglier wife—feel far less affection than any animal mates. He goes about with a long beard. She adorns herself with unspeakably rancid grease. They are unlovely people.

But after sighting them we remained very quiet, as our interpreter tugged at our sleeve, warning us to a silence we already had decided upon. The next sight puzzled us, for by us filed as many as 20 bushmen, apparently bound together upon some evening business far off in the woods, for all carried the native Australian weapon—the boomerang.

We could rather feel than see the chap in the bush opposite quiver and stiffen as these males filed past. And when they were well out of earshot, the bearded gentleman opposite got up.

Quickly, intently, he almost ran to the village, that was within our view over across the bit of level plain beyond our little patch of shrubs. Several of the village women were outside the most detached hut, bent over something, jabbering in their most unpleasant lingo, all their backs to us.

CRAFTILY, sneakily, marvelously quietly, the bearded gentleman crept up, until he was nearly upon the women. Then, with a swoop and a howl, with stubby, powerful arms upraised, he caught the nearest woman in his ugly embrace.

The next moment his clenched fist had descended upon her head till we could hear the echo, over yards of distance. And after that he beat her brutally, while all the other women looked on. Then he slung her over his back and started off, obliquely, towards another village some distance away.

We quivered with indignation and outrage. Indeed, as soon as the brute started pummeling the poor creature, we all wanted to rush to her assistance, but our native interpreter and our white guide forcibly restrained us. And when the drama was done, they explained.

No, no, this was nothing at which to take offense. No, no, how absurd. It was merely a bush wedding! So were all the bushwomen wedded, with a good hard crack over the head and a thorough beating up. Now the husband was taking his new bride back to his house, where, perhaps, there would be other, earlier wives awaiting her.

If this was so, each of them would bite a little portion from her left little finger. And then, when the lady came to, she would know by her aching finger and her still more aching head that she was thoroughly married. No, this was not brutality and we should not shudder.

This was holy matrimony among the bushmen.

Which was almost our first experience on our Australian trip. We had been commissioned by several museums to bring back many specimens, living, if possible, or suitable for mounting, of every animal which is found only in this treasure ground of rare and unusual beasts.

That trip we collected some fine specimens of the black swan, the white eagle, the "tall, standing, frilled lizard," the fork-tongued monitor lizard, and, undoubtedly rarest and most intriguing of all, the Duck-billed Platypus. No specimen of this is now alive in any American zoo. Only one reached the United States, alive, and then it came as a most costly voyager. Its "fare" to this country was $1400. Its food alone cost about five dollars a day, and consisted of crabs and other rare and expensive shell fish.

THIS Duck-billed Platypus would furnish fun for a theater full of people, if they could but look upon its antics, as we looked upon them that day when we first saw it sliding down a mudbank.

It slid like a schoolboy, gliding down hill over the snow on the seat of his pants. It had spurs on each side of its legs, like a rooster. Through its spurs there was the outlet of a large gland which could shoot out poison, like a snake.

The animal growled like a puppy. It lived half its life on the bottom of streams, fishing for angle worms and small shell fish. The horny ridges within its mouth served it as food grinders. In roomy pouches within its mouth it carried food stored up for future use, even as the chipmunk.

It was like a mammal, a bird, and a fish, and yet it was far more important than any of them. For it was—and is—the connecting link between the family of mammals and birds, and it may be found only in Australia and New Zealand.

We had many orders for this animal alive, but we were not able to bring one single living specimen back, though we did bring back several excellent specimens to be stuffed or mounted. In fact, the only living one that ever reached the United States, died after 49 days. It arrived in America July 14, 1922, a youngster only 23 inches long. It was expensively housed in a tank made half of water and half of earth, to permit it to live its subterranean, subaquatic life, burrowing beneath water or earth like the beaver.

It was on exhibition only an hour each day, and then all visitors were cautioned to keep strict silence. But the utmost coddling could not keep it alive two months. The creature evidently cannot stand captivity.

If all our specimens were as difficult and as delicate as the Duck-billed Platypus, there would be no profit in the business of live animal collecting.

BUT if there was a generous profit in that Australian trip of ours, there was also quite as much fun, as I thought when I watched my four brothers practicing with the Australian boomerang until they were able to throw it so that it returned to hit an object behind their

Both man and beast in this smallest of the continents offer hunters and scientists more interesting study than any other spot on the face of the earth, and here Mary Carmichael and her brothers take you with them into the bush for more new hair-raising adventures with cannibal, kangaroo, platypus backs. The natives stood by, admiring. These strangers with the pale white faces were not so stupid.

I believe that we got one of our supremest thrills from the kangaroo. It is of the family of marsupials, which means pouched. Today the Australian kangaroo, standing on its rear legs, balancing itself with its tail, reaches eight feet. In remoter times it reached, so science says, 16 and even 24 feet. But that was in the days of its glory.

Today, sadly enough, civilization presses these animals hard, and the Australian farmer hunts them with dogs, traps and poisoned food. Since the kangaroo and the planted field of the farmer cannot exist side by side, the farmer has decreed that the kangaroo must go.

And so I had several marvelous experiences chasing the kangaroo over the plains, as I sat on the back seat of an automobile and one of my brothers drove. We did not shoot them, though that is the way many a kangaroo now meets its death—by an automobile raiding party.

But to get an animal this way is profitless for the collector, since only the finest specimens, in the best health, are suitable for our purposes. And it is impossible to pick your specimens in such a chase. But the day we joined the particularly pestiferous kangaroo which had committed vast depredations upon the planted fields was a day I shall remember long.

We started in a car. Following us were two dogs, trained for the chase. How that kangaroo ran! I was told it carried in its pouch a fairly good-sized baby, but we never knew for sure, since this was one gallant and cunning kangaroo that was too much for us.

At any rate, after it had fled a way across the plain it stood stock still, its rear to us. Perhaps, as I thought later, it turned its rear to us so that whatever attack there would be from the dogs would not be directed against the baby in its pouch. At any rate, there it stood, apparently winded and spent. I was sorry for the gallant brute.

I rode that day with a farmer plainsman, my brothers being absent upon other business. At any rate, the farmer did not try to shoot, as the distance was too great and his rifle not very effective in this particular position. So the dogs barked up to the beast.

They were two great black animals, with a large mixture of worrying terrier in them. At length they were about to close in. They would hold her, perhaps, if they decided they could not put her out of the way at once, and we could then reach a nearer range.

The farmer started up the Ford again—and the catastrophe went off with a bang.

One of the dogs got an inch too near. Out shot a practiced rear hoof, and that dog was disemboweled in the flash of a second. Then away went the kangaroo, with the other dog howling for a moment, delayed for a moment, then taking up the chase gallantly.

We followed, in our Ford. After a good mile we came upon them again, just as the dog plunged into a pond to reach the beast that, even then, was a good 15 yards from shore.

"Another dog gone," mourned the farmer. This was bad business, his manner inferred. Off swam the dog towards the kangaroo. In 50 seconds, it seemed all over. Then out again, with fairly practiced cunning, went the forepaws of the kangaroo, seizing the dog between them, holding the dog deliberately under water, until he drowned. So these kangaroos have done, in similar emergencies, since the beginning of creation.

The farmer at length got the Ford near enough to try a shot. But as his rifle banged away, the kangaroo disappeared, and we were out two dogs, after an exciting chase, for nothing.

This farmer was a sad bungler for such work. Next week my brothers got the kangaroo with a neat shot, at a distance fairly comparable to that which balked the farmer.

A FEW days after this encounter, there played itself out right under our eyes a rather interesting drama of the bush. The father of one of our bushmen camp boys suddenly died, and so the old witch doctor was called in to determine the reason for his going. This he did, straightforwardly enough.

At a public "inquest" the sorcerer politely "asked" the corpse the reason of his death. After the man had held his ear down to the deceased's mouth for some time, he raised his head triumphantly. Ah, ha—he had it!

He had just heard that the poor chap had died out of unutterable longing for the "sweet cups of the white man." Now, if only he could have the sweet cups in death, all would be well with him. My brothers hadn't an idea of what he meant by "sweet cups," but finally the sorcerer led them to the boys' dressing tent and pointed to the shiny silver metal tubes of shaving cream.

That was what the dead man longed for. With a laugh scarcely suppressed, Tom gave the old rascal several nearly empty cylinders of shaving cream. And then the obsequies proceeded, in due form.

The old boy punched holes in the bottom, strung them about his neck, after passing them back and forth above the dead man's nose. Then, wearing them as a necklace, he finished the rites and pronounced the services done. As we stood by, relatives raised the body and started off to the nearby woods, where, to our wonderment, we saw a small fire already arising.

In the next moment our interpreter was extending an invitation to us. He was asking us to come to the banquet! They were actually about to eat the dead man—his friends and relatives.

And when, with horror, I tried to persuade them to do differently, our interpreter answered earnestly that to eat the dead was to honor him with all possible honor.

Addresses Heard Yesterday In Santa Ana Churches

REV. RINGLAND PREACHES ON BELIEF IN GOD

Paul's great faith in God was the subject of the sermon delivered yesterday at the United Brethren church by the Rev. T. V. Ringland, pastor. The speaker read as his text Acts 27:25 "I believe in God". His sermon in art follows:

"Beneath the deck of a grain ship which is caught in a violent storm, is a prisoner who calls day and night unto his God. Suddenly he comes above the deck and stands among the sailors and passengers, who all alike are working fruitlessly against the elements, and above the roar of the storm cries out, 'I believe in God.' With this faith he brought a message of cheer and hope to every soul on board.

"Too many men would like to profess belief in God and still keep the mastery of self at the disposal of the day as they come to God asks of every man a surrender of self. The first great commandment according to Christ is to love thy God with all thy heart, soul, mind and strength. The Christ many people see is at one which is reflected from their own daily lives.

"Many of those sailors had not, perhaps, heard that there was a Christ. Now comes one, in a time when other men are beside themselves with fear, who can say 'believe in God,' and because of his faith they are able to share his courage and confidence.

"How different from the God of the Ephesian sailor or the Roman gladiator.

"The Ephesians served Diana with his lips; the Roman brought Jupiter or Neptune a motive offering and both forgot the service in a day. Paul gave God the service of his heart. With Paul self was forgotten, and his cheer came out of the work of his hands and brain found do for others. It should ever thus with the Christian.

"It is the conscious service that ables God's men and women to heroic on the service which is possible to those who anywhere can say, out of a pure confidence, 'I believe in God, Whom I serve and Whom I serve'."

Many from County Attend Pontifical Mass Yesterday

A delegation of some 2000 persons from Orange county attended the impressive Pontifical Mass held yesterday at noon in the Olympic games stadium in Los Angeles as part of La Fiesta celebration of the founding of Los Angeles.

The service, which attracted a throng of 105,000 persons, and which was characterized as the second most spectacular Roman Catholic service in America, was attended by high officials and dignitaries of the church. The mass was celebrated with six famous church officers performing the impressive functions, headed by Archbishop Pietro Fumasoni Biondi, apostolic delegates to the United States.

Muscle played a large part in the service and in the preliminary concert, with a massed choir of 2500 voices and John McCormack participating.

MAKES PLEA TO CONGREGATION FOR RELIEF AID

At the Christian Spiritual Science church yesterday the Rev. Paul Andress, pastor, preached a sermon on the subject "Compassion and Sympathy" in which he discussed relief for those in need and urged common participation in this work. He took his text from Mark 8:2-3, "I have compassion on the multitude." The pastor said in part:

"The compassion here displayed by the Master, is a pity for the common wants of men. It is their common wants that impress Him. To all other masters the needs of the common day are ignoble, the wants of the passing hour are sin. The religions of men have no sympathy with man to man; they call on him to leave the world, they frown upon his struggles for the perishable bread.

"Will the prayer of the millions this coming winter be answered? And who will answer them? It must be you and I, we as teachers and believers in the golden rule must do our part, and not with the expectation of getting glory for it, but because it is our duty to see that one of God's creatures should be in want for their daily bread.

"I want you to read carefully the entire chapter of 1 Corinthians, 13. Substitute for the word Charity, Love. You will then feel the great need of giving. Too many people give to the poor because it's lending to the Master, expecting to receive a heavenly garment in exchange.

"I do not care what a man's or woman's condition is, whether he or she is a derelict or what not, if hunger assails them it must be satisfied. It is then when I can talk to them about the Master, for a full stomach is more apt to understand the message, than one which is empty.

"We as a church are not large in numbers, but we can do our bit in helping along, and here let me say, let's fill up our commissary, and to you dear friends who come every Sunday to listen to us, I am sure that you will catch the spirit and with your money and whatever else you may have to give, give it freely. Let me suggest when you put away fruit in cans set aside a portion for those who may be in need. I assure you that it will be placed where needed the most.

"And what of the reward? A new hope is planted in the hearts of the sick at heart, a new outlook on life, for the discouraged and a better understanding between man to man."

"God has organized the world in an orderly way and His laws rule nature," the Rev. Mr. Buchanan said. "As long as men walk with God they will have peace and happiness and something to eat. God will do his part in raising food, and I suggest to the unemployed that they get busy on a plot of ground and raise the food for their tables. When the union between God and man is broken, man retrogrades and gets into trouble as we find ourselves today.

"God appeals to men to come to Him. Jesus came to the world when it was in a turmoil and said, 'I am the truth, the way and the light.' But the Jews rejected Him and they have found bitter defeat. Then the gospel was taken to the Gentiles. For the past 2000 years it has been taught them, but they listened not. Of the 120,000,000 persons in this nation there are all too few listening this morning to the word of God. The world is nervous and upset and the reason is, I believe, that we are at the end of the Gentile age. The people are in dens of iniquity and impurity worse than those before the downfall of Rome.

"Jesus will lead those who listen to Him, who love Him and who pray to Him."

ASSERTS WORLD IS AT END OF GENTILE AGE

Negro spirituals sung by a woman's trio composed of Lorene Croddy, Betty Paul and Alta Fisher was one of the bright spots during the service of the Men's Community Bible class at the Fox West Coast theater yesterday morning.

The three young women, whose voices harmonized unusually well, sang two numbers, "My Lord Deliver Daniel" and "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," responding to demands for an encore with "The Old Ark a-Move-er-in."

Members of the class raised a special fund to purchase milk for a child who was in need of this food product, yet who through lack of employment in the family has been unable to get it. The fund was raised after an appeal by W. B. Martin, former class president, who declared that despite the greatest abundance of food in this nation, many people were going hungry. He asserted this was not due to any fault of God's plan for the world, but because of the failure of men to make proper distribution.

In a preface to the regular lesson of the class teacher, the Rev. Walter S. Buchanan, pastor of the First Christian church, declared that, while these were trying days, great help could be received through prayer. He urged the class members to keep cheerful and reminded them that in the stress and trying times of the Civil war period Lincoln found relief in prayer and humorous stories and keeping his spirits up.

The lesson subject for the morning was "Turning Unto the Gentiles," based on the decision of Paul to take the gospel to the Gentiles after it had been rejected by the Jews. In commenting on the failure of the Jews to accept the teachings of Christ, the class teacher expressed the belief that we had now reached the end of the Gentile age and that the Gentiles had also rejected the gospel.

SCORES LOVE OF WEALTH IN SERMON HERE

The Rev. C. C. Houston, pastor of the Southside Church of Christ, preached Sunday about the parable of the rich man. He pointed out that this man was not condemned because of any dishonesty in the way he secured his wealth, but that there was no divine ownership in any way with him. His thoughts were about his goods and he recognized no other ownership. The sermon in part was as follows:

"This man is represented as a farmer, who was a very successful man. He is what the world says is a shrewd business man. There is no thought of the Savior that he had accumulated his fortune dishonestly.

"He is brought to us as an example of one who did not believe in God, or was careless and unconcerned about the fact that he must some day go before his God. His thoughts were about his goods, his fruits, and where to put the great surplus for himself. He recognized no other ownership. God was not thought of.

"Some lessons might be helpful to us as we continue to look at and study this character, and its effect upon the possessor. Many times riches and the love of them engross the heart and steal it from better things. When the heart and life is filled with these there is not much room left for Christ.

"We may have delicious luxuries, much goods, and live on a magnificent style, eating, drinking, and being merry, yet these cannot prolong life, nor avoid the approach of pain and death. The forgotten and dishonored God must finally be reckoned with.

"Often times wealth is left to heirs who dissipate it in a short time to their own ruin. The path of wisdom is to seek the kingdom of God, and be ready when the summons comes. It matters but little then what has been our station or position here. If we have our affections and our treasures over there laid up in heaven we live without regret. We will then be going home to dwell with all the redeemed in the land of the saved and glorified."

STUDENT SAYS CHRISTIANS IN NEED OF VISION

"Dollars are often so close to our eyes that they blot out all else so that we don't know whether we are going up or down," said Jack Rimel, college student and former head of the Christian Endeavor in the First Christian church where he was guest speaker yesterday morning, choosing for his subject "Spiritual Vision."

"Maybe some groups of young people are reckless and doing things that are wrong, but that is again all the young people are going to the bow wows. Some judge life by isolated happenings rather than by the general trend. The long look is needed to see what is really happening.

"Some people are so far away from life that they think they are fine Christians living in a Christian world. But when they get close to they see that they are only bright labels on empty cans. This nation last year gave $8,000,000 less for missions and probably blamed it on the depression. Yet in that same year there was spent $22,000,000 more than before in beautifying and improving their own churches. And one tobacco company announced that last year it had $8,000,000 more profits than ever before. That in the year of depression, 'The nation will never be Christian until it quits boasting its and remembers that Christianity is in the Sermon on the Mount.'

"Some professing Christians are cross eyed. Their spiritual vision is twisted. The World War was the result of jumbled vision. Last year the nation spent 70 per cent of its budget on war debts and armament. There are 146,000 young people taking military training in our educational institutions. But I expect to see the time when young people will refuse to take up arms until the enemy actually steps on our soil in attack.

"Jesus healed the blind in many instances, the Bible tells us, and also opened their spiritual eyes. He can do that for us today."

SAINT ANA MAN DUCKS BULLETS IN GUN BATTLE

When a bank cashier starts shooting at fleeing robbers there are better places to be standing than in front of the bank according to Max Norman, 945 West Highland avenue. Norman, who is a solicitor for The Register, should know. He has had the experience.

According to Norman he was standing in front of the First National Bank of Brea Saturday noon when the "twins" bandits, who held up the cashier and escaped with approximately $300, dashed up in their car and entered the building. He was there when they came rushing out and he was still there when John J. Cox, cashier of the institution came dashing out and commenced to lay down a barrage of pistol bullets around the fleeing robbers.

"I was just crossing the street when the robbers drove up in their automobile," Norman said. "They almost ran over me but I thought nothing much of that. I saw them walk into the bank and in a minute they came running out and jumped into their automobile.

"In about a second a fellow that worked in the bank came running out with a pistol in his hand and that's when the fun started. At least it was fun if you like that kind of fun. This fellow started shooting at the two robbers as they drove away. Some of the bullets kicked up dust in front of the machine and others hit the street behind it but I don't think any of them hit the car or the two fellows in it.

"I didn't see a whole lot of the shooting for some of the bullets started to whiz past my head and I thought I had better duck to the sidewalk and when the quit flying the two fellows were gone."

It will be held at a date to be announced later.

CHURCH WOMEN SOCIETY THE HOME WEDDINGS FASHIONS HOUSEHOLD

Sixth Birthday Offers Opportunity for Pretty Party

Wednesday afternoon, September 2, was a memorable occasion for little Miss Ruth Marion Childs, who celebrated her sixth birthday in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Childs, 1201 South Broadway. Several of the little maid's playmates were invited to share in the pleasant day, and many were the favorite games enjoyed on the grassy lawn. In a peanut hunt, the prize, a jackstone set, was won by Patricia Hancock. Mrs. Childs took several pictures of the happy children during the afternoon.

The climax came when they were assembled in the dining room where ice cream, birthday cake and wafers were served at a large table, beautifully appointed in pink and yellow colors. The shades were drawn and they ate by candle-light. Gay balloons served as favors.

Little Miss Ruth received many gifts from her playmates, who included Nona Jean Jaberg, Allen Flint, Betty Bradford, Patricia Hancock, Charlene Kincaid, Maxine Hancock, of Santa Ana; Mary Lou Guley, of Seattle, Wash., and Joan Guss, of Anaheim. Franklin and Robert Childs, brothers of the little hostess, also were present.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

First Presbyterian Missionary society members are anticipating their program and social afternoon of Wednesday, when they will be entertained in the home of Mrs. F. E. Coulter, 826 South Rose street, at 2 o'clock. A business program will be along the line of young people's interests and all women of the church are invited to share it with the members and remain for the social hour to follow.

COSTUMES IN WORSTED PROVE POPULAR ADDITIONS TO NEW AUTUMN WARDROBES

BY JOAN SAVOY
NEA Service Writer

Collecting an assortment of smart worsted costumes for early fall is in no sense "wool gathering." It is, on the contrary, about the brightest way to go about setting your wardrobe into trim for the new season.

The young woman on the right might keep almost any day-time engagement except a formal tea date in her frock of black valla cloth with rolling collar of white satin, falling below the rather high neckline. The tight white satin cuffs are removable. The dress is shown with a black French tricornie with black and white feather trim.

The second costume was designed of a light weight woolen fabric known as La Paix wool. The black circular skirt has a blouse of red silk plaid. Over this is worn a red wool jacket with smart tie and deep cuff of soft black galyac. The hat to accompany this costume has a red and black feather ornament over the left ear.

S. A. White Shriners Attend Ceremonial In Hollywood

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Beisel, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hyde and William McConnell were Santa Ana White Shrine members who were in Hollywood Friday evening attending the ceremonial honoring Victoria Crouse, supreme worthy high priestess. Mrs. Crouse paid her visit to this city Thursday evening.

At 6:30 o'clock a chicken dinner was served, with tables decorated to represent all the months of the year. The ceremonial followed. The Shrine colors, yellow and white, were represented in the costumes worn by the worthy high priestesses and the watchman of shepherds, for the former wore white sports dresses with yellow jackets and the men wore white flannels, blue jackets and yellow ties. Mrs. Neal Beisel, worthy high priestess of the Santa Ana order, joined with the other worthy high priestesses in singing a group of songs dedicated to Mrs. Crouse. The same numbers were given at the Supreme Shrine convention held recently in Canada.

There was a good attendance of Civil War veterans and their wives and widows at the various sessions, and the annual Bean Day feast attracted a crowd of 500 diners. Mrs. Lieser was chairman of the sandwich committee for the feast, and had the assistance of seven other women in preparing sandwiches sufficient for the crowd.

At the annual election, Mr. Lieser, prominent member of Sedgewick Post No. 17, G. A. R., was returned to the office of adjutant. He has held this office for the past 12 years and this year attempted to resign, but was not permitted to do so. An even longer service has been rendered the association by its general manager, W. E. Henderson of Los Angeles, who is embarking on his 28th year in that office. Among his duties is the arrangement of musical features for the members.

Five O'clock Wedding Ceremony is Pretty Church Affair

Banked with a profusion of ferns and palms, the altar of the First Evangelical church provided a charming setting for the wedding of Miss Evelyn Hoefler and Harold Bushman, which took place Saturday evening, September 5, at 5 o'clock. Pink amaryllis in attractively arranged bouquets, contributed delicate floral charm and fragrance to the scene.

The musical program preceding the ceremony was given by O. C. Wilhelm of San Marino, who sang "Because" and "At Dawning." He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Wilhelm, who also played Lohegrin's wedding march for the entry of the bride party.

Miss Hoefler entered alone, and was charming in a white chiffon gown fashioned with long skirt and long sleeves. Her only ornament, a lovely strand of crystals, was the gift of the bridegroom. She wore a tulle veil edged in lace and forming a cap where it was caught to her hair with rhinestones. This same veil had been worn by her sister, Mrs. Victor Petersen (Rosa Hoefler), now of Fremont, Ohio, when she was married six years ago in the First Evangelical church. Miss Hoefler's shower bouquet was of white roses and sweet peas, and the dainty handkerchief which she carried was the same one her mother, Mrs. William C. Hoefler, had had at her wedding 33 years ago in Minnesota.

Miss Grace Hoefler attended her sister as maid of honor, and was becomingly gowned in pink satin, with which she carried a bouquet of pink roses and orchid sweet peas. Miss Helen Schultz, wearing orchid chiffon and carrying yellow sweet peas, and Miss Edna Mae Paige, wearing pale green chiffon and carrying orchid sweet peas, were bridesmaids. The dainty handkerchiefs which the three attendants carried were given them by the bride. Miss Paige and Miss Evelyn Hoefler were roommates last year at Redlands university.

Little Miss Eunice Felhauer was the flower girl. She wore a yellow satin frock and carried a basket of roses and petals, which she scattered in the path of the bride. David Juenko, just two and one-half years old, acted as ringbearer, and wore an all-white outfit with a black bow tie.

The bridegroom's brother, Claude Bushman of Ventura, attended him as best man. Ushers were Pleasant Bakenhus of this city and Reynold Heiser of Orange.

The Rev. E. W. Matz, pastor of the church, read the ceremony, concluding with a benediction which he gave while the bride and bridegroom were kneeling on a white satin pillow. After the ceremony the new Mr. and Mrs. Bushman received congratulations, while Mrs. Wilhelm played appropriate organ selections.

Members of the bridal party went to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hoefler, 2219 Grand avenue, for a reception. A delectable buffet supper was served, including a large wedding cake presented to Miss Hoefler by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Paige of Pomona. Three of the girls who have attended the Evangelical church with Miss Hoefler for the past several years, the Misses Dorothy Lutz, Ruth Brubaker and Velma Witt, assisted in serving.

When Mr. and Mrs. Bushman left by automobile for their honeymoon, Mrs. Bushman wore a black and white costume with accessories in black. On their return, they will make their home in Villa Park. Mr. Bushman is the son of George S. Bushman of that community.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Bushman are graduates of Orange union high school, Mrs. Bushman later attending the University of Redlands.

Ill before leaving for the mountains. Her mother came to nurse her through the illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Larkin, of 1225 South Broadway, left by automobile Thursday for a few days' visit with friends in San Francisco. They will return Monday.

Mrs. R. A. Weisgerber and daughters, Carlotta and Beverly, of 1225 South Broadway, are spending a few weeks with relatives at Oceanside.

Father's Profession Of Ministry Chosen By Two Brothers

After having spent the summer with his parents, the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. William Schmook, 816 Brown street, Gerhard Schmook left last Wednesday for St. Louis, where he will enter Concordia seminary for his theological course, preparatory to entering the ministerial field in emulation of his father, who is pastor of Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

Following his studies in the grade schools of this city, Gerhard Schmook entered California Concordia college in Oakland for the six years' preparatory and college course which he completed with his graduation in June. In his final year in college he was president of the student body, and also had the honor of being named class valedictorian.

En route to St. Louis to enter the Lutheran seminary there, he was to stop for a day or two in San Francisco and again in Salt Lake City, to visit with friends.

Enno Schmook, younger son of the home, also has chosen the ministry as his life work, and will leave tomorrow for Oakland to enter the same school from which his brother graduated in June.

Afternoon of Bridge Is Presented By Mrs. Ivins

A pleasant afternoon of bridge was shared last Tuesday when friends of Mrs. Roy V. Ivins gathered in her home at 1002 Cypress street. Pink raffles and asters from the gardens of the home decorated the rooms where the progressive games were enjoyed. A delectable luncheon served at 12:30 o'clock, preceded the card contest. Miss Blanche Ivins played the violin, accompanied by Miss Eva Burgee, during the luncheon hour.

With the checking of tallies, it was found that Mrs. R. L. Ballard, Mrs. Joe Steele and Mrs. Dan Thompson held high, second and low scores. Each received a pretty award, and a special prize went to Mrs. Ben Bauman.

Guests sharing the happy affair with the hostess, were Mrs. Frank Gates and Mrs. Ben Bauman, of Anaheim; Mrs. George Merriman, of Orange; Mesdames R. L. Ballard, Joe Steele, Dan Thompson, Frank Sutherland, Maude Swarthout, Oscar Carothers, Ed Prentice, Fred Cole, Paul Carnahan, Daisy McGee, John Gould, J. W. McElree, Forest Gay, Henry Schlink and Laith Burgee, of Santa Ana.

The Rev. O. Scott McFarland, pastor of the church, Mrs. McFarland, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Kring and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hawk are attending as adult advisors.

To My Patients and Friends:

As I desire to go abroad for a more thorough study of my professional work, I think it best to retire temporarily from active practice.

I have sold my office equipment located at 311 South Main street, Santa Ana, California, to Dr. Hiram M. Currey, who assumes all responsibility for professional services rendered at that location. Dating from May 1, 1931.

Signed,
DR. G. M. TRALLE.

NEGRO GROUP IN BROADCAST HERE TONIGHT

The all negro, frolic program, scheduled tonight at 10:30, entitled: "A Little Bit of This and That," promises to be entertaining, to say the least, according to KREG's program director, Mrs. Ruby Goodwin of Fullerton, meeting the frolic, has arranged personnel of artists who will entertain in many, diversified ways. A mixed quartet is to offer a group of spirituals sung in real, balanced harmony as only colored people know how to sing them, it is reported.

Eugene, "The Small Edition of Al Robinson," who so successfully entertained with vocal numbers last Thursday evening, will be there with a brand new group of numbers. Eula Bell is to sing other selection, accompanying herself at the piano, and Mrs. Carroll of this city will play a piano number.

"Cliff, the boy with the uke," is scheduled to sing and play "The Ark Town Strutters' Ball." The popular pair, Jabbo and Eula, are to continue their adventures in Hollywood and on central avenue, in their interesting and mirth making dialogue.

Bud and His Buddies, Hill Billy funsters on KREG from 4 to 5 p. m., have received proof that they are appreciated, in the form of tasty edibles from admiring friends.

Last Friday the boys received a delicious cake, the candy and cookies from listeners in Long Beach, San Pedro and Santa Ana.

Smoky said that these "rations" would be greatly appreciated, as luxuries of this kind were running low at the ranch house since "Auntie Pearl" was trying to keep on gaining weight.

KREG TO OFFER NEW FEATURE ON DANCING

Miss Joan Gaylord, conducting the Gaylord School of Dancing programs on KREG, announces that she will begin her series of dancing lessons tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, continuing with the broadcast of this series every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

These interesting radio lessons will describe in detail dances of the day, and examples of tap dancing will be demonstrated by Louise Gobel.

During the same period, Miss Gaylord will tell "The Story of the Dance," including its beginning and development up to the present time with an historical sketch of events and customs affecting dancing.

KREG officials state that this program is being anticipated with much interest by many listeners who like to dance or would like to learn.

RADIO FEATURES

Glen Osborne and his orchestra are to be on KREG again tonight at their usual time, 8 to 9 p. m., with plenty of rhythm and melody of the kind that pleases.

The Honolulu Playboys from 7:30 to 8:00 p. m. tonight offer Hawaiian airs and popular melodies of the day.

The Children's Hour, conducted by Lorena Croddy, is set for 6 o'clock tonight, and brings a wide variety of entertainment by and for the kiddies.

The Modern Trio, makers of tuneful melodies, will be heard again tonight at 10:30 for a half hour program.

We Try Orange Toast

The next time your across-the-hedge neighbor suggests that she would like to bring her sewing and spend the afternoon, second her motion, and for tea, make her green with envy of your way of serving the most sum'shus toast ever invented. I had it served to me yesterday, so speak with authority.

This special toast is ORANGE toast, made much as cinnamon toast is. If you have home-made nut bread nothing would be nicer, but if you haven't, whole wheat or white bread from the grocer will do.

ORANGE TOAST

Allow two whole slices for each person. Trim off crusts and toast one side. Take from the toaster and spread the un-toasted side with a mixture made by creaming 1/4 cup butter with 1/4 cup each of powdered and granulated sugar. Mix this to a soft spreading paste with orange juice, and last of all, add a tablespoonful of grated orange peel. Spread the un-toasted side with this orange paste, put back under the toast, and, watching it carefully, toast until the orange butter is bubbly and crispy, but not burned, please. The cupful of orange paste will make a lot of toast, enough for six people, unless you think it's so good you need double allowances.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Clam-Spaghetti Casserole
1 package spaghetti
1 tall can minced clams
1 celery heart, chopped fine
1 teaspoon chopped green pepper

2 cups thin cream sauce
1/2 cup grated cheese, mixed with 4 tablespoons toasted crumbs
Years ago, this clam-spaghetti dish was introduced to me at the beach and from that time on we have been close friends. No frills such as cheese and crumbs were used at the beach, but naturally, when the dish moved into the city it had to become civilized and able to appear at table.

Cook the spaghetti in salted water for 15 minutes, drain and rinse under hot water. (Rinsing these starchy pastes after cooking rinses off the loose starch and relieves you of just that much extra poundage.)

Put the spaghetti back in its kettle, add the clams and juice, with a little butter and whatever salt, pepper, paprika and cayenne you wish. Add also the finely minced celery and green pepper, and let this mixture simmer for a few minutes while the cream sauce is being made.

For the cream sauce heat two cups of milk and thicken with two tablespoons each of flour

FAMOUS RIDERS

Coming with the Sells Floto circus, which will show in Santa Ana next Saturday, are the Schwartz sisters, known as equestrienne idols of the Continent, who with their brother put on one of the features of the show under the big top.

Bareback Riders Present Feature With Big Circus

Equestrienne idols of the continent, the famous Schwartz sisters, are among the dozen or more star riding acts featured with Sells Floto circus, to be seen here Saturday, September 12. The sisters for several seasons have been the principal features of the famous winter circus in Berlin and came directly to America from lengthy and highly successful engagements with the enormous Strassburger circus, one of the leading and most popular outdoor entertainment organizations in Germany.

Grethen and Louise Schwarz, as pretty a pair of German misses as one would care to see, are accompanied in their equestrian exploits by their brother, Rudolph Schwarz, one of the ablest and best known riding athletes in Europe. The three present a series of difficult riding feats atop the backs of graceful, blooded horses, many of their achievements having been devised and accomplished by them alone, despite efforts of European rivals to imitate them.

The Schwartz sisters have been acclaimed in practically every city in Europe. Their reception in the United States has been equally enthusiastic and in a few short months they have established themselves as foremost among feminine riding stars of the American sawdust arena.

and butter rubbed to a paste. Cook 10 minutes over hot water. Add cream sauce to spaghetti and turn into a shallow buttered baking dish, strew the top with crumbs and cheese mixed, dust with salt and pepper and bake in a medium quick oven until the cheese forms a nice brown crust.

This inexpensive main dish will serve six people. Use with it two cooked vegetables rich in mineral elements and low in fat-making calories. I suggest steamed, mashed summer squash and whole, oven broiled tomatoes. Three hundred calories are allowed for each of the six servings in this dish. They are a well balanced combination of tissue-building and energy making foods.

Use eggs, and more eggs, while they are still low in price. Use for main dishes as well as desserts. For interesting ways to prepare them, send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a copy of SEALED SUNSHINE, Egg Recipes, will be mailed free of charge all this week.

BARRYMORE AS KILLER GIVES SPLENDID PLAY

Lionel Barrymore makes a magnificent bid for the dramatic acting honors of the year as the master murderer in Bayard Veillier's first original for the talkies, "Guilty Hands," which opened yesterday at the Fox West Coast theater.

There has been talk of audiences being tired of this, that and the other type of story. They wanted something new. Well, they have it now. To be sure, there have been mystery thrillers. But nothing like this. If you have a wife of the screaming type, bring a gag with you. Pins and needles play tag up and down your spine. Even if you're bald, you'll leave the show with your hair standing on end. When the dead body, with pistol in hand—but we'd better not tell you about that startling climax.

The cast, too, is exceptional, including Kay Francis, and little Madge Evans, who used to be a child star and now is grown up to be a regular leading lady—and a mighty fine one, too. William Bakewell, naive and charming, is another.

In the picture Barrymore portrays Richard Grant, who, as a prosecutor, sent 50 men to the electric chair. As a criminal at-

MANY GET MORE PAY THAN THEY EARN, BUT HERE'S ONE PAID FOR DOING NOTHING

One of the best ways to starve to death is to do nothing—anybody would know that, but, just the same, there is a man in Santa Ana who does just that—nothing—and is getting paid for it.

He is Arnold Boris Beinere, the mechanical man, who is advertising the current show at the Fox Broadway theater, "The Smiling Lieutenant," and when we say he does nothing, that is just what he means. He stands in front of the theater throughout the day and similes. He does nothing and the less he does the more money he is worth.

But here is what he has to say about his job:

"If," says Mr. Beinere, "you think doing nothing is easy, just try it for one minute. By doing nothing I mean suspend all voluntary motion. You will find that you can't refrain from batting your eyes and you will become conscious of a score of muscles that are just aching for activity."

"I became imbued with the ambition to be a 'mechanical man' as a result of watching a statue act as a vaudeville bill on which I was working as a song-and-dance man. I started with my eyes and it was weeks before I could go unblinking for two minutes. My eyes watered and became bloodshot. I stuck with

CHEVALIER AT BROADWAY HAS BIGGEST ROLE

Such rollicking happiness as was generated at the Fox Broadway theater last night must be enjoyed! There Maurice Chevalier made love and sang; Ernest Lubitsch's deliciously silly comedy created rousers, and Claudette Colbert's brunette beauty competed for favor with Miriam Hopkins' vivacious loveliness.

"The Smiling Lieutenant" has come to town for four days, bringing the imitable and beloved Chevalier in a romantic comedy role such as he has never had on the screen; the kind of role that combines the wistful beauty of his part in "Innocents of Paris" with the gorgeous gaiety of his role in "The Love Parade," with songs that vie in catchiness with the numbers he sang in "The Big Pond."

It's good to feel to the full the engaging Chevalier friendliness. In "The Smiling Lieutenant" the popular French entertainer gives everything he has, in a lovely romance with two lovely feminine leads.

The subtle humor which Claudette Colbert has mixed with her romantic seriousness in a score of screen successes, in "The Smiling Lieutenant" comes right to the fore. Miss Colbert and the irrepressible Miriam Hopkins, whose blonde beauty captivated audiences in last season's popular Broadway success, "Lysistrata," and flashed for a moment on the screen in "Fast and Loose," vie with each other for first honors. And the cast also includes that jolly fellow, Charlie Ruggles.

torney he has saved a hundred others from a like fate. He discovers his daughter (Miss Evans) to be infatuated with a wealthy roue. There is only one way to save her from disgrace. He kills the man and makes the crime appear a suicide. From that point on the plot sweeps to baffling proportions. To reveal beyond that point would rob the splendid film of much of its entertainment value.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY MAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

As soon as Clowdy watched the rope do funny tricks, he said, "I hope you let me try to swing it 'round. I'm pretty good at that. I had a lasso years ago and, goodness me, how I could throw. I'll bet I'll sail the wooden balls around wee Scouty's hat."

"Oh, no, you won't," brave Scouty cried. "You'd better sock me in the side. You'd better lasso fences, where there's no harm can be done. I wouldn't take a chance with you, because you ne'er know what you'll do. I like to have a good time, but that doesn't sound like fun."

This made the cowboys laugh with glee. Then one said, "Here, son, we will see if you can lasso anything. Use my rope. Try your luck." So Clowdy took the rope in hand and shouted, "I will prove I'm grand. I'll bet you all will soon admit that I have heaps of pluck."

Then he began to swing the rope until a cowboy shouted, "Nope!

That's not the way to do it! I will teach you. Watch me now." So Clowdy did as he was told, just hoping he would catch a hold. With quite a bit of patience, Mister Cowboy showed him how.

Soon Mister Travel Man said, "We have other things that we must see. I know where there's an ostrich farm. Let's travel on our way." Into their cab they promptly jumped and o'er a bumpy road they bumped. They reached the farm real shortly and the Tities cried, "Hurrah!"

Wee Scouty said, "Well, goodness me! Do all of you see what I see? A great big ostrich, running fast, is coming toward us now. Perhaps, if he is not so dumb, this means he's glad that we have come. I hope he isn't mad, 'cause then we'd have an awful row."

LABOR DAY

Labor Day is a holiday of comparatively recent origin. Undoubtedly it was instituted to give those who labor with their hands an opportunity through parades and demonstrations to show their strength, and to promote their interests.

There are those who question the institution of a holiday for any particular class. If the laboring class is to have a day set apart for them, why not the manufacturers, the bankers, the school teachers, and all the rest?

This sounds very plausible, but it should be remembered that aside from the farmers, the workers constitute the largest class in our social life. In the earlier years they received none too much recognition. Landless, with no economic security, subject to the vicissitudes of panics and depressions, the worker was often in a most deplorable state.

The man who has his farm is comparatively independent of his fellow men. The business man has his ups and downs, but he has some capital and investments to tide him over the hard days. But the worker is at the mercy of forces over which he has no control. The security of the worker has been much enhanced in recent years. It has been enhanced by stronger organization, and by a growing recognition of his rights.

The chasm between the worker and employer in America has been more or less easily crossed up until the present time.

The boy who has a paper route too large for his personal attention employs another boy, and becomes an employer. A couple of workers who have become competent journeymen, pool their savings and start in business for themselves, and at once become part of the capitalistic class. Washington Gladden many years ago found that 92 per cent of the leading business men of Springfield, Mass., had risen from the ranks.

There is a considerable change now, however. It requires more capital to establish enterprises than it did a few years ago. Free western lands, of good quality, have become very scarce if they have not entirely disappeared. Individual opportunity, relatively, when compared with Great Britain and other old countries, is still very great in this country, but compared with the past it is reaching the end. It takes more ability, more initiative, and a great deal more energy for a man to break from the ranks of labor to the ranks of the capitalist than it did a few years ago, and it will continue to be increasingly difficult.

This will not be without its benefit. The craft organizations have always lost, from time to time the valuable leadership of capable men, who have become employers, while under more difficult circumstances they would have continued to aid the wage earners, as one of their own number, in their economic and political plans. The ambitions and joys, which are worth while in life, we should be able to achieve without changing our vocation. When the greatest inducement which can be presented to a workman for continuing his labors in any field, is the hope that he will some day be able to get out of that work it is not the highest form of inducement. The relatively small number, moreover, who are actually able to leave the ranks and reach a better financial status makes this appeal pathetically absurd, and really there is a better appeal.

The satisfaction which should come to every man in serving the world, whether it is aiding the world, by furnishing it with automobiles to carry on its work, or with a book to give it information, should really be the worthwhile thing to strive for. However the expanding idea of labor and of wage-earners must incorporate every individual who works, whether he works with his head or with his hands. The scope of Labor Day might well be broadened therefore, so as to include all those who make some contribution to the economic stock and the welfare of mankind. This would immediately raise all workers and producers into a common class, and distinguish them from that parasitic class who, having inherited a fortune, expend it in selfish luxury and immoral excess.

Society should be divided between those who work and those who loaf, those who lift and those who lean, between the workers and the shirkers. That would be a much more wholesome classification than now exists. Besides it might make the drones of society a class of dishonor.

ONLY METHOD LACKING

The world and this nation have probably never been confronted on Labor Day with a more serious situation than we are on this Labor Day.

The relation of machinery to labor, this machine age, what it has done to our industrial and economic system, and what it portends, are problems which are most challenging today to statesmen, economists, industrialists, and labor itself.

It does appear that a portion of the men and women in the world can produce by means of machinery, everything that the total population can possibly use, either of machine-made products or the products of the farm. These things have been produced,—they are produced with only a portion of the people employed to do it, and that in many cases only on part time with a great army of helpers unemployed.

We have the production and no means between the article produced, whether agricultural or industrial, and the people who need it. Of course, it would have been far different if in the origin of our factory system, the mass of labor had purchased and taken possession of the machinery which was displacing their labor. But the attitude of labor has always been hostile to the machinery which displaces it.

In the origin such machinery was actually destroyed by angry laborers about to be displaced. But it has gone on its relentless way, establishing itself in the factories and with a few men performing the service, the rest of them forced to the streets.

During a period of time, when the wants of our civilization were increasing, the multiplicity of things produced, and the building of additional factories seemed to answer the objection, and the theory has been expounded that there was only apparent displacement and not a real displacement. This was true as long as the homes in this country which had incomes, had wants that were unfulfilled. But the homes have reached almost their saturation point, and improvement in the manufacture of articles insures longer life to them.

In a large majority of the homes of this country, there is almost nothing wanted. This is certainly true in the vast majority of homes that are able to purchase and with the homes having reached this saturation point of automobiles, radios and other things, the unemployment problem is infinitely more serious. To be sure, there is the depreciation, the obsolescence, and additional wants, but in every crisis, the situation becomes more severe.

From many angles, it looks as though we are working it out. Certainly from the standpoint of relief, our nation is addressing itself with earnestness to the matter and, we believe, we will pass through this coming winter in a much better way than we did last winter.

This, however, is only temporary work. The real thought should be upon working out in our great democracy, a solution that is worthy of our scientific development, of our cultural standard, and of our Christian outlook. We are still a great, prosperous nation; we are living in a nation of plenty. That plenty is still with us. All that is needed is a better adjustment. That adjustment must be based upon a plainer conception of brotherhood. There must be a sharing of necessities in our conception rather than simply the giving of our surplus. The finest part of our situation lies in the spirit in which we believe it is being approached by all classes of people.

Sport vs. Destruction

The San Diego Union

The game trails of San Diego county's mountain country are growing dim, and in a very few years our blacktail deer—the most beautiful and least destructive of our wild game—will be practically extinct. Another deer season opens the 16th, and hundreds of hunters in this county will go out after deer that no longer roam in herds but slink through the thickets, lonely and furtive, like coyotes.

One correspondent of ours, living on the north side of Cuyamaca, has just made a census of the deer in his area. He estimates that there are not more than 10 or 20—most of them does with fawns—on a slope that offers food and cover for hundreds of blacktails.

"What was once a sport is now a cruel pursuit," this man writes. "I think almost every true sportsman feels this way about deer-hunting now in these mountains. As soon as sympathy enters into the hunt, the primitive gusto departs."

Our deer are being hunted out and destroyed with a ruthlessness that resembles warfare or extermination, and unless both nature-lovers and sportsmen can get together on a remedy—and that, soon—the blacktail are doomed.

There is some agitation in the north for a five-year moratorium on deer-hunting, and the move has the backing of many sportsmen whose only interest is to conserve the game. Some humanitarian considerations and some love of the picturesque and beautiful ought to be mobilized, too, behind this move.

What we are practicing now is not sport, but wanton destruction—and, as our correspondent suggests, there is very little pleasure in it for anybody. Probably no part of California would benefit more than San Diego from a five-year closed season on deer.

Bombing Planes for Mosquitos

New York Times

The technique of bombarding mosquitos with a tightly rolled newspaper or a well-aimed pillow is familiar to cottagers and even to New York apartment dwellers. Many have often longed for deadlier missiles to fight the terror that flies by night. They will be pleased to learn that bombing planes have been successfully used in Panama and certain sections of this country to kill mosquitos.

The plan is not, however, to drop explosives on the enemy, though he richly deserves that fate. A poisonous dust, cheap and simple to make, is discharged from the plane over insect-infested areas. Flying low, from twenty to forty feet above the ground, the pilot spreads his Paris-green mixture. This is deadly to the larvae of the malaria-carrier species. Other less dangerous but equally pestiferous mosquitos can be killed off, it is believed, by adding oil to the compound.

The bombing plane was selected as a mosquito-killer, not because of its warlike character, but because its construction is such that the dust-spreading apparatus can be easily adapted to it. It is also suited to carry great weights. Six hundred pounds of the dust is an average load.

EXPLAINING SOLOMON

Of Solomon's vast wisdom
There isn't any doubt.
Most everything that ancient king
Appeared to know about.
His knowledge was extensive,
His reasoning was true;
When subjects came their trials to name
He knew just what to do.

But it is little wonder
That Solomon the Great
Possessed the wit all day to sit
And troubles dissipate.
He told the cares and worries
Of other people's lives,
Which made them sad or drove them mad—
To his abundant wives.

And woman's intuition,
Compounded many fold,
Could answer find to every kind
Of griefs in days of old
When he faced any problem
That plunged his mind in doubt.
His spouses sat and had a chat
And swiftly worked it out.

Men are not so sagacious
In these benighted days,
Man's mind alone is often prone
To function in a haze.
Old Solomon's keen judgment
Infrequently went bad,
But that is due, past question, to
The many wives he had.

"When a Man Bites a Dog"

By WILLIAM TRUFANT FOSTER
and WADDILL CATCHINGS

"When a dog bites a man," said a great editor, "that is nothing remarkable; but when a man bites a dog, that is news." The Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank of New York City has just advised its depositors to take some of their money out of the bank and spend it. That is news. In fact, it is an event without precedent in the long history of banking.

At the convention of the American Bankers Association last year much was said about the need of increased saving. Nothing was said about the need of increased spending. The President of the Association declared that the banks would carry on an intensive campaign to induce the people of this country to become more thrifty.

Commenting in this column on the proposed campaign, we ventured the opinion that the people of this country already were saving too much money. The only way to restore trade and employment, we said, was for the people to spend more money.

Almost without exception, the bankers opposed our views. The President of the Mutual Savings Bank Association declared that "no country can save too much." The way to restore prosperity, he said, was for the people to put more money in the savings banks.

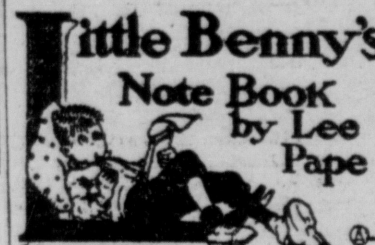

And now one of the largest mutual savings banks in the world, with deposits of nearly $400,000,000, advises its depositors to withdraw some of their savings in order to carry out "a wise program of buying."

"Wise spending at the right time," says the President of the Bank, "is as much a part of good thrift, as saving all you can when prices are going up."

He is a heretic among bankers. He is denounced today; but he will be followed tomorrow. The orthodox view that money should always be saved and never spent is too stupid to last much longer.

Some day, a banker will advise increased spending, and no editor will call it news.

INTRISTING PEEPLE

One time Lucky Leroy Shooster swallowed a dime, the lucky part being it didnt belong to him.

Glasses Magee likes to look up long words in the dictionary to find out what they mean in case he ever gets a chance to use them, wich he never does on account of forgetting them again rite away.

The only thing in their favor
Being they dont haff to wash their neck.

Billy Sunday is creating more than a slight commotion in Los Angeles, and the waves of this commotion are beginning to reach out as far as Santa Ana.

The Garden Grove bean house opened September 1, and Manager W. H. Newcomer expects the house will handle about 40,000 sacks of beans this year, as there was a larger acreage to beans this year than ever before.

George W. Young, Clare Johnson and Andrew Gibson will leave tomorrow on a hunting and fishing trip to the Mono lake section.

There seems to be a greater demand for electric cars now than ever before, according to the statement of J. T. Van Why of the Santa Ana Electric garage, Third and French streets.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Pickering have recently returned from a trip to Seattle. Mr. Pickering is a building contractor of this city. Next week 152 drafted men will leave Orange county for American Lake, Wash.

C. G. Twist of this city was chosen as a member of the board of directors of the California Golf association at the annual election held this week at Del Monte.

Thoughts On Modern Life

THE SCHOOL BELL RINGS!

There stands on my desk a bronze hand-bell which my father rang before country school houses in Missouri for 40 years without missing a term.

The black enamel of its handle is worn through where his fingers gripped it, but its resonant ring is still clear as callers now and then swing its clapper while they question into its history.

As I passed it this late August morning, when leaving the office for a board meeting, I thought it looked a little resentful over its present role of paperweight. It looked a little like an old engineer who once piloted the transcontinental express, but was spending his last years as gatekeeper at the crossing.

I think the premonitory stirrings of the oncoming school year were fingering the atoms of the old bell and awakening its bronze memory of earlier decades, when, as summer slipped into autumn, it got ready to ring the youth of a Missouri countryside to its books.

It has been out of active service for a good stretch of years. Until a little while ago it had long lain hidden in the obscurity of a summer kitchen attic, surrounded by discarded books, prints and a medley of what-nots.

It belongs to a generation that accepted its educational system uncritically, to a generation that, by and large, looked up to the schoolmaster as the missioner of a sacrosanct enterprise.

It stands on my desk with a confident dignity and an air of assurance that indicate its isolation from the acid questioning to which everything educational is today being subjected.

As it rang the youth of an early time from playground to classroom, it called them in a serene confidence that it was the symbol of an education that was fitting them to create, to comprehend and to control their civilization.

The era it recalls seems Arcadian in contrast to the current era when education is everywhere met by a turbulent and tenacious skepticism of its social effectiveness.

In these weeks, just when the whole nation is getting ready to go back to school, it is timely, I think, to ask and to try to answer some searching questions about our educational system.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

HANDS OFF

When a child enters school he must be assured that his body is sacred. No hands are to be laid upon him save in affection. The school staff must not only accept that idea but they must know that it is right. They must feel that it is right. Further, they must abhor the thought of striking a child in the name of education. Force is not for the teacher. A teacher deals with the mind of a child. She leads him to think. No conduct at all worthy is born of force. The worthwhile sort comes from right thinking.

Can you imagine a child thinking rightly after his teacher has struck him across the face? All the wrath of his savage ancestry, and there is the savage in every one of us, rises to the top. It is plain that one cannot be savage and cultured at one and the same time. It is also plain that if the worst instincts in a child are constantly brought to the surface they grow stronger and stay longer each time. Every appearance makes the next more certain. If education is to strengthen good qualities and smother poor ones, force is out of the question. And education must strengthen good qualities and smother poor ones.

Further, it must bring out the hidden good qualities that are under the surface and give them sufficient encouragement to allow them to make their presence felt. I am saying all this again because from a parent whose boy has been beaten with a rubber hose because he spat out of the schoolroom window. Spitting out of the window is an unwholy thing to do according to our code. The boy knew better. He was doing something that he knew the teacher would loath. It gave him pleasure to annoy that teacher. So he spat out of the window. And the teacher, being bigger and heavier, beat him with a rubber hose.

The boy was in the wrong. Boys are naturally wrong in such situations. But see what happened. The teacher flew into a rage and beat the boy. Now a teacher is one who draws out the good qualities in a boy or a girl. He is to shed light in dark places. He is to illuminate the spirit of a child so that it radiates beauty, goodwill and happiness. He is to dispel ignorance and implant knowledge. He is to build up character. He is to be a savior to his children. He is to know the inner meaning of those words of the great teacher, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

It is hard to see the kingdom of heaven expressed in the boy who spits out of the window. But it is there. The kingdom of heaven is within every human spirit, even the least and to our limited understanding, the worst. What made the boy do that? Why did he show the worst side of himself that day? Because the feeling between him and his teacher was wrong. Nobody is to blame for that perhaps. It may be a misunderstanding, a matter of temperaments, a matter of opposing tradition. But to the teacher all error is subject to the right understanding. To the teacher love is all powerful. Force, in the school room, is worse than useless. Love, understanding, good will, whatever name you choose to give the spirit of loving kindness, uplifts, heals and nourishes the child spirit always.

LLOYD GEORGE LAUDS U. S.

On Sept. 7, 1917, David Lloyd George, prime minister and first lord of treasury of Great Britain, praised America's part in the World War in an address at Birkenhead.

He said: "The Central Powers are dealing, and they know it, with a country (America) that has never yet been beaten, a country with infinite resources, a country where you have qualities that make for enterprise and endurance." On this date also President Wilson placed an embargo on all gold exports. It was to become effective Sept. 10.

Reports through Rome indicated that losses of 120,000 had been suffered in battles in and about Gorizia.

Time To Smile

WAS HE GENEROUS?

MRS. GREEN: My husband is very generous. FRIEND: Well, I can't say the same for mine. MRS. GREEN: Here's an instance. I gave him a large box of cigars and the old dear only smoked one of them and gave the rest away to his friends.—Pele Mele, Paris.

NOT SO MUCH

"We don't print any such stuff as that," said the editor, loftily, as he handed back the poem. "Well, you needn't be so haughty about it!" retorted the poet. "You're not the only one who won't print it!"—Answers.

OH YEAH?

"So your wife chased you into the closet when you got home late. Then what did you do?" "Locked myself in—and she demanded that I come out." "Did you?" "No; I'm master in my house."—Pathfinder.
